County has competitive week

Low turnout in general election

Results at a glance

By ZOË HAGGARD
zhaggard@t-g.com

The total number of registered voters in Bedford County is 28,087. But only 4,332 voters turned out for the last general election, according to the post election summary report.

There were 1,997 votes cast total on Election Day Thursday. Election results also included 74 paper absentee ballots, and 2,261 walk-in/early votes. Overall, this comes to a 15.42 percent voter turnout rate for Bedford County.

Despite the low voter turnout, several districts in the County saw tight races in this year's election cycle.

District 5 saw six candidates running. Scott Johnson (R) came in with 477 votes and will be replacing incumbent Jeff Sweeney. Incumbent Linda Yockey (I) saw 461 out of the 1,750 total votes and will continue to occupy the commission seat.

District 1 also saw the replacement of incumbent commissioner Don Gallagher (I), who lost by 3 votes to dark horse candidate Eric Maddox (R). New to the commission for this district will also be Eric Maddox (R).

Independent candidate for county mayor Misty Pellar also received a fair amount of votes as a dark horse candidate running against Republican incumbent Chad Graham. From the East Side voting precinct she saw 42.77 percent of the votes and 38.15 percent of the votes from the South Side precinct.

Overall, there were 4,045 total votes for this race. Graham received 2,761 (or 68.26% of the votes). Pellar received 1,250 (or 30.9% of the votes) across the County.

The District 7 race for a seat on Bedford County School Board was the most competitive with 3 write-in candidates vying for the seat. Ultimately, Barton Williams beat out Sandra Avent and Michael Henry. Though this district had the most candidates, it had a total of only 32 votes.

Uncontested school board candidates included Brian Crews (I) of District 2, who received

More than 3 inches of rain fell in a short time over northern Shelbyville on Sunday afternoon, leaving roads flooded and homes surrounded by water deeper than anyone had seen in memory, if ever. "I've never seen it come up this much, this fast," says Judy McKinney of Clara Drive as she looks over the front yard of the home where she's lived for approximately 40 years. "I didn't even have time to get my cars out."

Judge shows no leniency to Rich

59-year prison sentence

By TERENCE CORRIGAN
Special to the T-G

"Mr. Rich has exhibited little or no regard for human life." That's what Senior Trial Judge Thomas J. Wright said to 25-year-old Samuel "Sam" Earl Rich of Shelbyville at a sentencing hearing on Thursday.

"I think you deserve the most (prison) time I can give you. You shot Ms. Perryman and left her for dead. You shot people and just went on about your business. Such despicable acts cannot be tolerated in a civil society," Judge Wright told Rich.

The judge then expressed to the victim, her family and to the family of Will Warner how "deeply sorry" he was for their loss. Rich is currently charged with the murder of Will Warner in Davidson County, with a trial date set for April 23.

Rich faces in Davidson County court two counts of felony murder, 1st degree murder, especially aggravated robbery, felon in possession of a firearm and theft of property (items valued at between $10,000 and $60,000.)

Attempted first degree murder

Rich was convicted at a jury trial in late June of seven crimes in connection with shooting Hannah Gracie Perryman in the face during the early morning hours of Aug. 13, 2021. According to prosecutors, Rich stood over Perryman for a few minutes after the shooting to "see if she was dead."

Judge Wright sentenced Rich to the maximum sentence for shooting Perryman and his other crimes committed that night in Bedford County.

Rich was sentenced to a total of 59 years: 25 for Attempted 1st degree murder, 10 years for employing a firearm during the commission of a dangerous felony, 6 years for theft of property, 6 years for felon in possession of a weapon, 6 years for the aggravated burglary, 12 years for especially aggravated burglary and 6 years for tampering with evidence. (The judgment for especially aggravated burglary was merged into the attempted 1st degree murder charge thus reducing the 71 years total to 59.)

Although the sentences would appear to result in the imprisonment of Rich until age 84, it's unlikely he will remain in prison that long. Under Tennessee law, Rich will be eligible for early release (parole) after 41½ years, at age 66. His sentence may also be reduced further with jail credits (for good behavior while incarcerated, commonly call 'good time.')

Typically, "inmates serve the minimum sentence to make room for dangerous individuals," said Senior Trial Judge Thomas J. Wright as he concluded issuing the sentence to Rich.

Rich tries murder for hire

In the sentencing hearing Thursday, TBI Special Agent Robert "Bobby" Simmons testified that following the shooting of Perryman, Rich made numerous phone calls from jail trying to hire someone to kill Perryman. Rich allegedly said several times that with "Perryman out of the way," police would have no case.

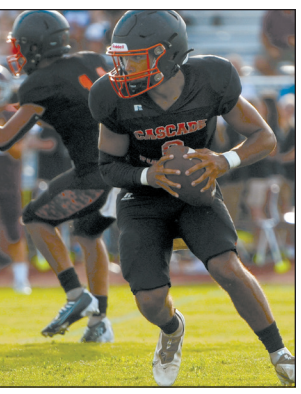

Simmons stated how Rich was hoping he could "hire someone to kill her with a drug overdose to make it look accidental."

In an audio recording played in court, Rich tells a man he was trying to hire he is "...going to do his best to work something out" to pay him. "I'm a good guy," Rich said. Early in the call, Rich identifies himself as "This is the other gangster."

Rich tries to assure the man that he will pay, telling him he has a construction business and giving the man family information as references. Court statements show that Rich gave the man his sister's, mom's and grandmother's addresses and phone numbers. Rich reportedly mentioned to the man that his father was in the judicial system. (Bedford County General Sessions Judge Charles Rich is Sam Rich's father.) The man Rich called told him he needed "10 up front," but when Sam Rich balked, the man said to Rich, "If you can't do 10, can you do it 5?"

One of the last statements on the recording was Rich stating, "I'm a good guy."

Francis Pauline Crick

Aug. 7, 2022

Funeral services for Francis Pauline Crick, 84, of Shelbyville will be held 5 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 10, 2022, at Doak-Howell Funeral Home with Brother Mark Rosson officiating. Burial will follow in Cothran Cemetery in Rover. Visitation will begin at 3 p.m.

Mrs. Crick passed away peacefully Sunday morning, Aug. 7, at her home surrounded by her family.

Pauline was born in Shelbyville on November 28, 1937, to the late Cad Huston Prosser and Corrie Blessing Prosser. She worked as a secretary for the late Dr. Nathan Thomas, DVM, for many years, then in her later years worked at National Pen, and was a faithful member of Eastview Baptist Church. She loved to take care of animals, was a very giving person and was a blessing to anyone that knew her.

Along with her parents, Pauline was preceded in death by her husband, Robert Crick, in 2008; brothers, Fred Avery Prosser, Franklin Dewey Prosser, and Cad Huston Prosser Jr.; and a host of nieces, nephews, sisters- and brothers-in-law. The family would like to give a special thank you to Hospice Compassus for their care in these last days of Pauline's life.

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the Bedford County Humane Association, P.O. Box 391, Shelbyville, TN 37162.

Letter to the editor

Elections in our country are critical components to the exercise of freedom and self-governance.

Elections offer all of us choices, opportunities for change and the chance to endorse what we feel is the direction each of us would like to see our country, our state and our county pursue.

Some candidates win, some candidates lose but most importantly we as voters make choices.

Elections always present consequences but equally they provide opportunities.

Local elections, in particular, are personal in nature. Local County Commission candidates are our neighbors, our friends and part of our family. Our local County Commission candidates choose to run for office with the intention of providing a public service. Contrary to what many people think, County Commissioners do not have a staff, they do not have an office, they don't get government paid benefits, they don't live in Washington D.C, they don't pass laws and they certainly don't have any incentive to become career politicians.

I have never written a letter like this before, but I believe it is important enough that everyone should know.

Over the past four years Bedford County has been afforded the services of one of the finest, most competent and unselfish individuals I have known, Mr. Jeff Sweeney.

Commissioner Sweeney is a professional builder, developer, and successful businessman. Four years ago, our county needed assistance as a Project Manager for three inherited major construction projects. Commissioner Sweeney stepped up and volunteered his services at no cost to Bedford County.

The new Judicial Center was over budget and behind schedule. Commissioner Sweeney volunteered services saved Bedford County taxpayers over $700,000.00 which otherwise we would have been forced to pay with additional taxpayer monies.

When our County began the construction of the new Cascade High School, Commissioner Sweeney again volunteered his services and, on this occasion, he saved taxpayers over $100,000.00 by his efforts and knowledge.

The County Annex building project was a disaster. Commissioner Sweeney stepped in to oversee the completion of this project, he pulled it together, he met important timelines over and over and through his unpaid efforts, delivered a completed project saving the taxpayers over $50,000.00.

Through his sheer determination, his hard work and his wide-reaching network of contacts, Commissioner Sweeney helped created the Shelbyville Bedford County Partnership. The Partnership Board of Directors contains some of the brightest, creative, and successful business leaders in Tennessee, all of which are volunteering their time to help Bedford County attract quality business opportunities, create innovative jobs and insure everyone here have a chance to succeed.

These are only four examples of what Jeff accomplished. There are dozens more equally important and singularly responsible action that reflect his commitment to public service.

During his four years of service, this county, this County Commission and all of us as taxpayers have been witness over and over to the importance of having high caliber individuals, like Jeff Sweeney, offer their talents, offer their time and put in the work at no cost and no financial reward to them individually, but done simply for the betterment of our community.

He has been a friend; he has been a competent and capable community servant and he has left an indelible record of accomplishment for the entire county.

The people of Bedford County need more people like Jeff Sweeney, and we need more people to lend their time to public service. His service, his commitment to Bedford County and his accomplishments are a testament to his hard work and resolve to be a true public servant.

We will miss his presence on the County Commission; we will miss his advice and counsel and we will dramatically miss his abilities. But it will be the Bedford County taxpayers who will miss him most of all.

Father, son get life for hate crime

BRUNSWICK, Ga. (AP) — The white father and son convicted of murder in Ahmaud Arbery's fatal shooting after they chased the 25-year-old Black man through a Georgia neighborhood were sentenced Monday to life in prison for committing a federal hate crime.

U.S. District Court Judge Lisa Godbey Wood sentenced Travis McMichael, 36, and his father Greg McMichael, 66, in Brunswick. Both were previously sentenced to life without parole in a state court for Arbery's murder.

"A young man is dead. Ahmaud Arbery will be forever 25. And what happened a jury found happened because he's Black," Wood said.

In February, a federal jury convicted the McMichaels and neighbor William "Roddie" Bryan of violating Arbery's civil rights, concluding they targeted him because of his race. All three were also found guilty of attempted kidnapping, and the McMichaels were convicted of using guns in the commission of a violent crime.

The McMichaels armed themselves with guns and used a pickup truck to chase Arbery after he ran past their home on Feb. 23, 2020. Bryan joined the pursuit in his own truck and recorded cellphone video of Travis McMichael shooting Arbery with a shotgun. The McMichaels told police they suspected Arbery was a burglar, but investigators determined he was unarmed and had committed no crimes.

Before the two sentences, Wood heard from members of Arbery's family. His mother, Wanda Cooper-Jones, said that every day she feels every shot fired at her son.

"It's so unfair, so unfair, so unfair that he was killed while he was not even committing a crime," she said.

Greg McMichael addressed the Arbery family, saying their loss was "beyond description."

"I'm sure my words mean very little to you but I want to assure you I never wanted any of this to happen," he said. "There was no malice in my heart or my son's heart that day."

Outside the courtroom, Cooper-Jones responded to his statement.

"I think he realizes that he made some horrible decisions. Unfortunately, his apology doesn't bring back my son," she said.

Travis McMichael declined to address the court, but his attorney, Amy Lee Copeland, said her client had no convictions before Arbery's slaying and had served in the U.S. Coast Guard. She said a lighter sentence would be more consistent with what similarly charged defendants have received in other cases, noting that the officer who killed George Floyd in Minneapolis, Derek Chauvin, got 21 years in prison for violating Floyd's civil rights, though he was not charged with targeting Floyd because of his race.

Greg McMichael's attorney, A.J. Balbo, also cited the Chauvin sentence as well as his client's age and health problems, which he said include a stroke and depression.

Prosecutor Bobbi Bernstein said Chauvin at least had some legitimate authority to engage Floyd initially.

"Greg McMichael had absolutely no legitimate reason to run inside and get a gun and chase after a young man who was doing nothing other than running down the road," Bernstein said.

Arbery's killing became part of a larger national reckoning over racial injustice and killings of unarmed Black people including Floyd and Breonna Taylor in Kentucky. Those two cases also resulted in the Justice Department bringing federal charges.

"The evidence we presented at trial proved ... what so many people felt in their hearts when they watched the video of Ahmaud's tragic and unnecessary death: This would have never happened if he had been white," Christopher Perras, another prosecutor, said Monday.

A state Superior Court judge imposed life sentences for the McMichaels and Bryan in January for Arbery's murder, with both McMichaels denied any chance of parole. Bryan had a sentencing hearing scheduled later Monday in the federal case.

How to successfully take pills

Dear Heloise: Today's column talked about successfully taking pills. As an RN, my advice is to take a big swallow of water first, and then start taking your pills.

STRAWBERRIES

Dear Heloise: We love fresh strawberries, but they quickly seem to go bad when they are crammed into those large plastic containers.

AVOCADOS ARE GOOD FOR YOU

Dear Heloise: I love avocados, but my husband says they're nothing but junk food. He claims that there is very little value in a fruit that is basically a lump of fat.

Elaine, avocados are a good source of vitamins C, E, K and B6. They contain riboflavin, folate, magnesium and potassium. They also provide omega-3 fatty acids and beta-carotene.

In addition, avocados contain lutein and zeaxanthin, which are good for your eyes, and 6 to 7 grams of fiber, per half fruit.

So, go ahead and eat avocados. They're good for you! -- Heloise

A HEALTHY SNACK

Dear Heloise: I discovered garbanzo beans (also called chickpeas) are high in plant protein.

Since I want my children to eat healthy and stay away from junk food, I take a can of garbanzo beans and rinse and drain them. I spray a cookie sheet and spread the garbanzo beans out onto the cookie sheet.

FEET ON THE DASHBOARD

Dear Heloise: Recently, I was stopped near a car at a stoplight. The front seat passenger had her feet on the dashboard. You may want to alert your readers about the danger of doing this.

JURY DUTY

Dear Heloise: I just read the letter about doing your duty by serving on a jury. In my state, there is no law that says a person must be paid his/her salary while on a jury.

While it sounds wonderful to do your civic duty, people have to pay bills. My employer pays for five days, and anything over that falls on the employee.

HEALING FINGER CUTS

Dear Heloise: I'm always getting small cuts on my fingers, and the old procedure was to put an antiseptic on the cut and protect it with an adhesive bandage.

After a couple of hand wettings and washings, the bandage would come loose, exposing the cut. I then tried cutting a small piece of gauze and putting it on water-resistant adhesive tape.

The next try was using a liquid antiseptic -- such as iodine or mercurochrome -- sealing it with liquid "new skin" and covering it with waterproof adhesive tape.

AG NOTES

Hickory Horned Devil

Surprise Lillies

By John Teague
 UT/TSU Extension

FARMERS MARKET

It's just now getting up to speed. We have a dozen or more vendors each week and they are bring some good produce and products.

The market is each Thursday afternoon at 2:30 at the pavilion next to the big blue water tower at the Celebration Grounds, across from Calsonic Arena. See you there.

WHAT IS THIS?

I never saw these flowers in East Tennessee. They may be there but my grandmother didn't have them. I think they are really neat since they surprise us with an overnight appearance, seemingly from nowhere.

They are actually called surprise lilies. Most of what I've seen are a soft pink and white color on a long stem. They have to experience cold weather, and then they put out leaves that I don't pay any attention to or notice. But the leaves come out unnoticed and then go dormant, and the lilies then shoot up from the bulb.

There are some other colors available, but I've never seen them. The ones at our house were planted by someone a long time ago, but we have no idea who it was. I've attached a picture of ours. But these blooms are in a lot of places around the area. Pay attention to these treats.

AND THIS?

I mentioned earlier that we saw a moth that was orange and white. I had never seen this one before, and I thought it might be called a Vol Moth, or something like it.

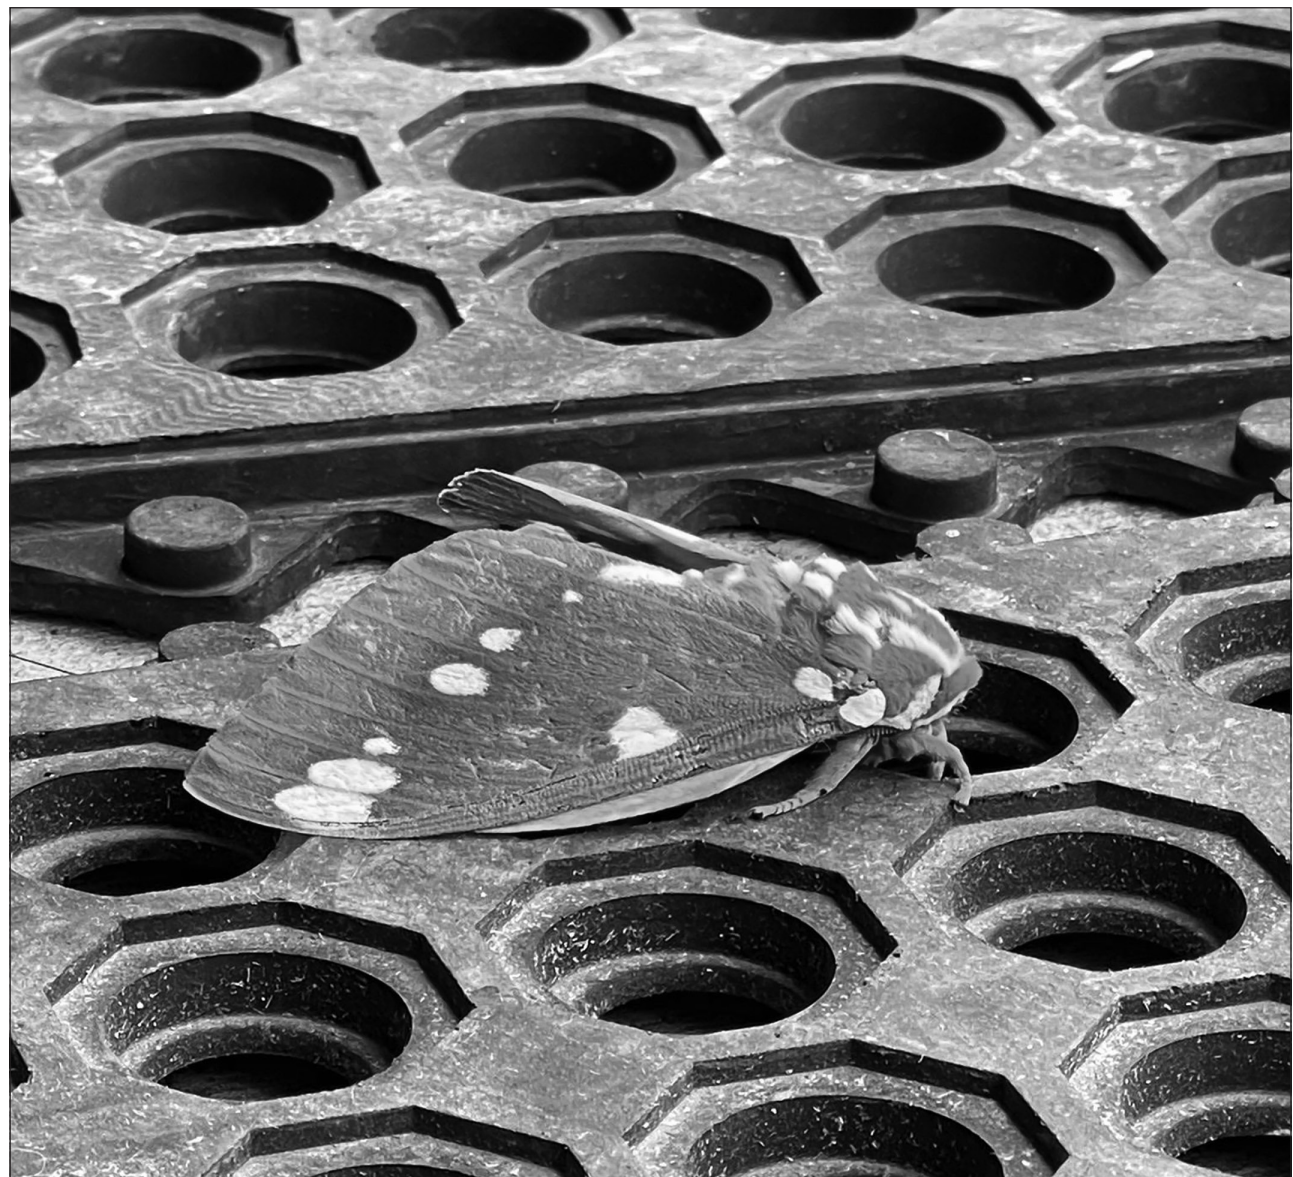

Its name is a Regal moth. It looks really pretty and elegant. But I was shocked that its larval form is one I've seen over time and it's definitely not regal in appearance, not is its name regal. The larval or caterpillar stage is called a Hickory Horned Devil, and it looks like it. I've seen these before, but not often. Here's more about them from the North Carolina State Extension publication by Steven Frank et al. The photo is by Lyle J. Buss, Univ. of Florida.

The hickory horned devil, Citheronia regalis, is the largest caterpillar of the United States. Although it has a ferocious appearance, the hickory horned devil is harmless. This worm starts as a tiny caterpillar after hatching from one of hundreds of eggs laid by a regal moth. Over a matter of weeks, it grows and molts until it reaches its amazing mature size (almost 6 inches!).

The fully-grown hickory horned devil has a brown head, dark green body, black prolegs and numerous spines. Each body segment has four or more short, black spines around in a row around it. The two body segments toward the front have four long projections each that are brown at the base, black at the tip and curve back. These are the "horns" that give the caterpillar its ferocious appearance and name. The "horns" are sometimes 3/4 inch long. Mature hickory horned devils crawl to the soil and dig in to form a subterranean cell in which they molt into a pupal stage. The shiny, dark-brown pupa is about two inches long (or even longer) and is somewhat cylindrical.

The fall, winter and spring is spent as a pupa in the soil. Next summer, the insect molts into the regal moth. Regal moths are large and have stout bodies. Females (wingspan up to 6 inches) are larger than males. The head and body are orange-red and yellow spots and markings. The wing veins are also red-orange. The dark areas between the veins are dull gray. The forewings of males are pointed toward the tips and narrower than the back wings.

Hickory horned devils are sometimes found on walnut, hickories, pecan, sweetgum, persimmon, and even sumac. The small caterpillars eat very small amounts of foliage, but the later stages consume considerable amounts of leaves. One reason that hickory horned devils are such a surprise is that they are actually kind of rare. In spite of their large and forbidding appearance, birds are apparently fond of them for food. Not only that, but parasites and diseases also kill a portion of the population.

Consequently, very few of the hundreds of eggs laid by regal moths successfully develop and produce offspring of their own. Because hickory horned devils are harmless to humans and are relatively rare, no control measures are needed.

I've attached pictures of both the adult moth that we saw and the caterpillar stage. Interesting.

Spotlight: Wartrace horse show

By DAWN HANKINS
dhankins@t-g.com

The 116th Wartrace Horse Show is one for the books. With great turnout and so-so weather, it was another magical night for spectators and exhibitors.

Cascade School boosters were hard at work cooking hamburgers and serving up drinks. See Saturday's edition for story about how important this horse show is to the Cascade community and schools.

It was a hot August night at Jernigan Field, for sure, especially when the rains slowed and the humidity increased.

But that doesn't stop those who enjoy a good, old fashioned Tennessee Walking Horse show. Let 'em walk on!

Stabbing victim keeps battling

By DAVID MELSON
dmelson@t-g.com

A cut artery didn't stop a seriously-injured Shelbyville man from trying to get at his alleged attacker Saturday night.

Christopher Jerome Harris Jr., 43, of Shoma Drive allegedly stabbed Ronald Jamel Singleton, 28, of White Street, in the neck during a dispute over money at Blue Ribbon Inn, North Main Street.

Harris told police he stabbed Singleton in the bottom of his chin with a car key as Singleton advanced toward him.

Police charged Harris with aggravated domestic assault and aggravated assault. He was released with no bond set.

Singleton was charged with disorderly conduct after repeatedly cursing at officers, attempting to push past them to reach Harris, and refusing to let medical personnel treat his injury, the report said. He was taken to a Nashville hospital.

Violent acts

A man allegedly pointed a handgun at a Bedford County deputy as he arrived at a Kingdom Road home Thursday to investigate a report of a man threatening to kill law enforcement and family members.

Jeptha D. Alsup IV allegedly lowered but refused to relinquish the weapon and walked into a wooded area. Alsup eventually exited the woods and a standoff lasted around 15 minutes. Deputies were able to arrest Alsup after he eventually dropped the gun.

A neighbor told deputies Alsup spray painted words on his Corvette, along with vulgarities on his own car, the night before.

Alsup was charged with aggravated assault, domestic assault, and resisting stop/frisk/halt/search, and was hospitalized for mental evaluation, investigators said.

A man briefly pointed a rifle at another man and threatened to kill him Thursday before the victim took the weapon out of his hands, according to a Bedford County Sheriff's Office report.

Antonio M. Catalan Herrera, 41, of Highway 41A North returned to the victim's home on Sunrise Court with a pistol, only to find waiting Shelbyville police officers. The officers determined he was intoxicated.

He was charged with aggravated assault, DUI, open container, unlawful possession of a weapon, no driver's license and possession of a handgun while intoxicated, and released on $14,000 bond.

Drug charge

An estimated 0.3 grams of methamphetamine was confiscated from a suspect being served with a warrant at a White Street home Sunday, Shelbyville police said.

Darrell Steven Graves, 61, of Whitaker Road, was charged with possession of a schedule 2 drug and paraphernalia and held on $7,000 bond. Police said 0.3 grams were found in his clothing.

Thefts

A utility trailer containing a Bad Boy mower was stolen from outside a Dover Street home early Sunday, police said.

Also reported to area authorities:

Two television sets, four air conditioners, and furniture were stolen from a Cliffside Avenue home last week, police were told Sunday.

An iPhone was taken Thursday afternoon while left briefly beside a drink machine at Circle K, North Main Street.

A child's bicycle was stolen from the yard of a Church Street home overnight Friday.

Fired up

A couple allegedly fired five shots into the air after being refused "dinner food" at Burger King, North Main Street, around 3:30 a.m. Sunday.

The couple, in a black SUV, had been told at the drive-up window the breakfast menu had just gone into effect.

Jail intake

The following were arrested since Thursday by the Bedford County Sheriff's Office, Shelbyville Police Department, Tennessee Highway Patrol or 17th Judicial District Drug Task Force. They are only charged; guilt or innocence will be determined by the courts.

Kiontae D. Caldwell, 27, Murfreesboro; simple possession; held, $1,500 bond

Antonio M. Catalan Herrera, 41, Highway 41A North; aggravated assault, DUI, open container, unlawful possession of a weapon, no driver's license, possession of a handgun while intoxicated; released, $14,000 bond

US pledges $1 billion for Ukraine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Biden administration announced another $1 billion in new military aid for Ukraine on Monday, pledging what will be the biggest yet delivery of rockets, ammunition and other arms straight from Department of Defense stocks for Ukrainian forces.

The U.S. pledge of a massive new shipment of arms comes as analysts warned that Russia was moving troops and equipment in the direction of the southern port cities to stave off a Ukrainian counteroffensive.

The aid includes additional rockets for the High Mobility Artillery Rocket Systems, or HIMARS, as well as thousands of artillery rounds, mortar systems, Javelins and other ammunition and equipment. Military commanders and other U.S. officials say the HIMARS and artillery systems have been crucial in Ukraine's ongoing fight to try to prevent Russia from taking more ground.

The latest announcement brings the total U.S. security assistance committed to Ukraine by the Biden administration to more than $9 billion since Russian troops invaded in late February.

"At every stage of this conflict, we have been focused on getting the Ukrainians what they need, depending on the evolving conditions on the battlefield," Colin Kahl, under-secretary of defense for policy, said in announcing the new weapons shipment.

Until now, the largest single security assistance package announcement was for $1 billion on June 15. But that aid included $350 million in presidential drawdown authority, and another $650 million under the Ukraine Security Assistance Initiative, which provides funding for training, equipment and other security needs that can be bought from other countries or companies.

Monday's package allows the U.S. to deliver weapons systems and other equipment more quickly since it takes them off the Defense Department shelves.

For the last four months of the war, Russia has concentrated on capturing the Donbas region of eastern Ukraine, where pro-Moscow separatists have controlled some territory as self-proclaimed republics for eight years. Russian forces have made gradual headway in the region while launching missile and rocket attacks to curtail the movements of Ukrainian fighters elsewhere.

Heavy rain results in flash flooding

High water inundated portions of northern Shelbyville as an intense thunderstorm struck late Sunday afternoon. The National Weather Service said, and unofficial home weather stations indicated, 3 to 4 inches of rain fell in less than an hour. No official flash flood warning was issued for Bedford County.

Titans patient as Willis learns

By TERESA M. WALKER
AP Pro Football Writer

NASHVILLE — Malik Willis is experiencing some growing pains as the Tennessee Titans rookie works through his first training camp.

Willis threw a deep pass to Josh Malone for a nice connection Friday and came back by finding Mason Kinsey across the middle in coverage. Needing a touch-down to wrap up practice, Willis completed two of his first three passes before running and sliding down around the 10.

Then the rookie over-threw Reggie Roberson Jr. at the back of the end zone before being sacked on a corner blitz by Michael Griffin II as time expired.

That's OK. The Titans can be patient with Willis because Ryan Tannehill is their starter.

"It really is one day at a time. It really is," Titans quarterbacks coach Pat O'Hara said. "And that's OK. And he's been great."

The Titans took the 6-foot-1, 219-pound Willis with the 86th pick overall out of Liberty, trading up to make him the highest-drafted quarterback by the franchise since taking Marcus Mariota at No. 2 overall in 2016. Willis threw for 2,857 yards and 27 touchdowns last season with 12 interceptions and ran for 13 TDs. For his career, he had 48 TD passes and 29 rushing.

Mariota had to start immediately.

Not only does Tennessee have Tannehill going into his 11th season, Logan Woodside has been his backup the past couple seasons. The challenge is whether Willis can progress fast enough to challenge Logan Woodside for the job backing up Tannehill. On Thursday, Willis ran the two-minute offense right after Tannehill.

Willis says he felt light years away from where he was at Tennessee's rookie minicamp in mid-May to just the start of training camp a couple weeks ago. He's processing faster what he needs to be doing on each play and feels much more comfortable running the huddle and at the line of scrimmage.

"My coach is making it real easy to just focus on what I need to focus on and let me go out there and play and have fun," Willis said.

He's also learning that fine line that a wide receiver that might appear covered well in college can make the catch in the NFL. Willis has the strong arm, but timing is everything.

"I feel like it's more when you have to throw that ball, and arm strength is not always going to save you because that waiting half a second later, it might be a PBU instead of a completion," Willis said.

O'Hara got to spend a lot of time with Willis before the April draft. He believed Willis would be able to grasp information quickly and retain all he learned.

But he has been impressed at just how "super smart" the quarterback is in dealing with the pressure of going from the college game to the NFL, where even the hash marks are different.

"His decision-making, which we monitor, has been very good for a rookie," O'Hara said.

"And things that he hasn't had to do before relative to working from the pocket, his feet need to catch up with his mind. And it's getting better. It takes time. Malik has a very strong arm and a really cool skill set. But you can't always rely on that all the time."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee rookie quarterback Malik Willis made a business decision when he found himself sacked off against Pro Bowl defensive lineman Jeffery Simmons in a live tackle drill at training camp.

He went straight to the ground. "I was like, 'No, this can't be right,'" Willis said Sunday of the moment earlier in camp. "But I just do the drill. I turned around ... and I just get down and I'm not going to get hit by him."

Other NFL quarterbacks don't have that luxury against the 6-foot-4, 305-pound lineman coming off his best season. He not only helped lead the Titans to the No. 1 seed in the AFC with a team-high 58 quarterback pressures, Simmons also had a career-high 8 1/2 sacks in his third NFL season.

Simmons added another three sacks in Tennessee's divisional playoff loss to Cincinnati, setting a franchise record for the postseason. Linebacker Harold Landry, who led the Titans with a career-high 12 sacks last season, says Simmons sets the tone for their defense.

"He's absolutely one of the best leaders that you're going to find," Landry said. "I'm excited as hell to have him, to be able to line up next to him. He's a great player, but he's also a great person. And he backs up everything he says. So that's what you need out of a leader like him."

Simmons is showing the Titans and his teammates just how much he wants to be a leader on this team.

Despite switching agents earlier this summer, Simmons reported on time for training camp. He is under contract through 2023 with the Titans picking up his fifth-year option. However questions arose during the mandatory minicamp about whether he might want a new deal when Simmons attended — but did not step on the field.

On the first day of practice at camp, Simmons cut off questions about whether he wants a new contract.

"I am not talking about contract," Simmons said. "I'm focused on football. I'm in camp. I'm here. I'm trying to be the best I can be as a football player."

Simmons has been speaking up more as well. Titans coach Mike Vrabel said playing to a certain standard like Simmons does gives him the luxury to hold other people to that same standard.

"Everybody leads differently, but I do appreciate Jeff's willingness to play with passion and also hold guys accountable, and then he'll hold himself accountable if he doesn't live up to the standard that he set and that we expect of him," Vrabel said.

The Titans expect a lot from Simmons, who fell to them at No. 19 overall in 2019 after he tore his left ACL that February.

Rose dismisses misconduct allegations

By DAN GELSTON

PHILADELPHIA — Pete Rose dismissed questions Sunday about his first appearance on the field in Philadelphia since the franchise scrapped 2017 plans to honor him because of a woman’s claim she had a sexual relationship with baseball’s hit king when she was a minor.

“It was 55 years ago, babe,” Rose told a female baseball writer for The Philadelphia Inquirer. Rose, though, had no trouble reminiscing about the 1980 World Series champion Phillies team — it was 42 years ago, Pete — that was honored before Sunday’s game.

After initially getting booed lightly, the 81-year-old Rose received a standing ovation from Phillies fans — many not even born or too young to remember baseball’s hit king in his prime — when he walked onto the Citizens Bank Park field for the first time since he received a lifetime ban from Major League Baseball in August 1989.

“They made me feel real good today,” Rose said of the cheers. “I don’t want to say I expected it. I guess I did expect it from Philly fans. That’s the way they are. They love their sports heroes.”

Rose’s already stained reputation suffered another blow in 2017 when the Phillies called off a planned induction into the team’s Wall of Fame because of the sexual misconduct accusations levied against him. Rose brusquely responded to the reporter’s question before the game — and later apologized to her following Sunday’s ceremony after initially saying, “will you forgive me if I sign 1,000 baseballs for you?” — and was just as combative on the topic after the pregame celebration.

“I’m going to tell you one more time: I’m here for the Philly fans, I’m here for my teammates, OK,” Rose said. “I’m here for the Philly organization and who cares what happened 50 years ago.”

The woman, identified as Jane Doe in 2017, said Rose called her in 1973, when she was 14 or 15, and they began a sexual relationship in Cincinnati that lasted several years. She also alleged Rose met her in locations outside Ohio for sex.

Rose’s lawyer had said the woman’s claims were unverified.

Rose acknowledged in 2017 that he did have a relationship with the woman, but he said it started when she was 16. He also said they never had sex outside Ohio.

At the time, Rose was in his mid-30s and was married with two kids.

Rose was among many former great Phillies — including Hall of Famer Steve Carlton, and fellow World Series champions Bob Boone, Greg Luzinski and Larry Bowa — honored for the 1980 team. Mike Schmidt sent a videotaped message and missed the alumni day festivities because he tested positive for COVID-19.

“We’ve been doing it for a while, coming back every year, and to mix Pete in, I thought, was very special,” Boone said. “When I go to (Cooperstown), I always thought he should be there. You can write anything there, but he was the greatest hitter in the league. Put his name up and put he did this, got punished for whatever.”

Last month, the Phillies defended the decision to invite Rose to participate in the ceremony.

“In planning the 1980 reunion, we consulted with Pete’s teammates about his inclusion,” the Phillies said in a statement. “Everyone wants Pete to be part of the festivities since there would be no trophy in 1980 without him. In addition, the club received permission from the Commissioner’s Office to invite Pete as a member of the championship team.”

The original 1980 anniversary celebration was postponed for two seasons because of the pandemic.

A 17-time All-Star, Rose got 826 of his 4,256 hits during his five years playing for the Phillies from 1979-83. There are no immediate plans for Rose to get inducted in Philadelphia’s Wall of Fame.

“Anybody would like to be on the Wall of Fame,” Rose said. “I don’t know who made that decision, but God bless them. They made it for a reason. I’m still here today for the biggest event in a long time here in Philadelphia. I’m sitting right here to talking to you guys. Everything evens out.”

Dixon wins Nashville race

NASHVILLE (AP) — Scott Dixon arrived in Nashville not really a championship favorite, but still mathematically eligible to win a record-tying seventh IndyCar title.

And even though he was stuck in the middle of a tight pack of drivers jostling for the championship, The Iceman never counted himself out of the fight.

Dixon passed Mario Andretti for second on IndyCar’s all-time wins list with a victory Sunday in the messy Music City Grand Prix — a win that moved that seventh title within his reach. The win pushed Dixon up two spots in the standings and only six points behind leader Will Power with three races remaining.

“You’re in it until you’re not,” said Dixon, noting he trailed Juan Pablo Montoya by 48 points with three races remaining in his 2015 championship season.

“That’s the point — you’re never out of it until you are, so we’ll keep digging.”

Dixon overcame a poor qualifying effort, damage to his Chip Ganassi Racing car, a crash-fest around the downtown streets of Nashville and finally a drag race against Scott McLaughlin in a two-lap push to the finish between fellow New Zealanders.

He won for the 53rd time of his career to break a tie with Andretti for second in the all-time column and now has his sights on A.J. Foyt’s record of seven IndyCar titles. Foyt is also IndyCar’s all-time winner with 67 victories.

Kevin Harvick celebrates Sunday’s win at Michigan, ending a 65-race win drought.

Kevin Harvick ends 65-race drought, wins at Michigan

By LARRY LAGE
AP Sports Writer

Harvick ended a 65-race winless drought that lasted nearly two years with his sixth victory at Michigan International Speedway on Sunday.

“Good timing, for sure,” he said.

Harvick’s win shakes up the play-off race with just three races remaining in the regular season, leaving little time for drivers to earn a spot in the 16-car postseason, and gives a boost for a veteran that entered the weekend No. 17 in points.

“Everybody that doubted us doesn’t know us,” he said.

NASCAR has had 15 different Cup winners this season. If there are two new winners over the last three races, a driver with one win will be eliminated from the 16-car playoff with a tiebreaker based on points. Ryan Blaney and Martin Truex Jr. are top-10 drivers in points, but they have not finished first to put their postseason positioning in peril.

Harvick’s No. 4 Ford pulled away from Bubba Wallace and the rest of the field following a restart with 35 laps to go at the FireKeepers Casino 400. The Stewart-Haas Racing driver took advantage of clean air, helping him coast to his 59th victory, including five wins since 2018 on the two-mile oval in the Irish Hills region of southern Michigan.

Harvick had not won since claiming a NASCAR Cup Series post-season race on Sept. 19, 2020, at Bristol Motor Speedway.

Wallace finished second in his No. 23 Toyota — 2.9 seconds behind Harvick — followed by Denny Hamlin in his No. 11 Toyota.

“Second’s not good enough for the playoffs,” said Wallace, who needs to win one of the final three regular-season races to earn a spot in the postseason.

Austin Cindric, who won the Daytona 500 for his first career victory, started the day No. 15 in points and finished last in the 37-car race after his No. 2 Ford hit the wall head-on in a nine-car crash that knocked Kyle Busch out of the competition.

“It was a complete mess,” he said.

Bubba bumped

Wallace won his first career pole Saturday, becoming the only driver to break 190 mph in the Next Gen car during qualifying this season and went even faster early in the race after a 90-minute rain delay.

Wallace, driving for 23XI Racing formed by Charlotte Hornets owner Michael Jordan and Denny Hamlin in 2020, stayed out front until he made a pit stop after 21 laps — two shy of his career high — and the decision that cost him track position due to a crash soon thereafter that included one-fourth of the field.

Wallace blamed himself for letting Harvick pull away after the last pivotal restart.

“I’ll wear this one on my heart for a while,” he said, choking back tears. “I failed everybody.”

Busch’s bad day

Busch had another frustrating day, getting knocked out of the race on lap 25 due to the multi-car crash following a restart that also ended Cindric’s day.

“I can’t buy a break right now,” said Busch, who was the favorite to win the race, per FanDuel Sportsbook.

Busch has failed to finish in the top 10 in eight straight races, the longest streak of the two-time champion’s career, and he does not have a contract for next year. Three days before racing at Michigan, he and his wife and their two young children escaped the Mall of America in Minnesota after shots were fired.

Odds and ends

Austin Hill made his Cup debut for Richard Childress Racing and finished 18th. ... Kurt Busch missed his third straight race with concussion-like symptoms. Ty Gibbs, the 19-year-old grandson of team owner Joe Gibbs, filled in and was a Cup career-high 10th in the No. 45 Toyota for 23XI Racing. ... Cole Custer’s No. 41 Ford had its front left tire engulfed in flames, ending his day midway through the race a week after Chris Buescher’s No. 17 Ford caught fire. ... Buescher’s paint job featured the LeBron James Family Foundation. The Los Angeles Lakers superstar is a minority owner with Fenway Sports Group, the parent company of Roush Fenway Keselowski, which hosted James Bromsey III, a sixth-grade student at his I Promise School in Akron, Ohio.

Up next

NASCAR shifts to Richmond Raceway in Virginia, one of the last three races of the regular season. Hamlin won at Richmond in April.

Rattler among Gamecock newcomers

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Spencer Rattler smiled broadly and sat up his chair thinking about South Carolina’s first game a month away.

“I’m just ready to go,” the ex-Oklahoma quarterback said Thursday. “It’s been some time since I played football, like, for real.”

Rattler, who led the Sooners to a Big 12 title in 2020, is among several high-profile transfers who’ve joined the Gamecocks in the off-season. Rattler believes he and the others can help the program build on a 7-6 mark in coach Shane Beamer’s debut season.

“He’s preaching everything that’s right. He’s got this program going in the right direction,” said Rattler, who’s known Beamer since he was an assistant at Oklahoma. “We’re focused on day-by-day getting better.”

Rattler and his teammates reported for meetings and planning sessions before hitting the field for the first time Friday morning.

For Rattler, the change of scenery has brought a chance to show he’s the leader who threw for 3,031 yards and 28 touchdowns two years ago ago instead of a starter who was benched in favor of Caleb Williams midway through the season.

Tight end Austin Stogner, Rattler’s teammate at Oklahoma and now South Carolina, was on a December visit with Beamer researching his own transfer plans when he encouraged the quarterback to consider the Gamecocks.

“Now, we’re both here,” Stogner said.

And Stogner’s not the only addition. Tailback Christian Beal-Smith joined South Carolina after gaining 1,254 yards and 11 touchdowns the past two seasons with Wake Forest. Receiver Corey Rucker transferred from Arkansas State, where he caught 59 passes for 826 yards and nine touchdowns.

The group, which also includes Georgia runner Lovesea Carroll and North Carolina State defensive end Terrell Dawkins, had blended in nicely through spring and summer sessions, according to Beamer.

“We’re pretty far along,” Beamer said.

Part of that was the way Rattler and the others have kept their heads down to blend with their new teammates, offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach Marcus Satterfield said.

Rattler, a top-tier Heisman Trophy candidate for the Sooners this time a year ago, could’ve flaunted his celebrity or talked up his accomplishments at his new location.

“But he had the discipline to not rub anybody the wrong way,” Satterfield said.

Offensive lineman Dylan Wonnum seconds that. He sits next to Rattler in team meetings and has found a friendly player already invested in being a strong teammate. “He came in humble,” Wonnum said.

Beal-Smith, at 23 and a grad transfer, has also let his work habits do the talking, said running backs coach Montario Hardesty.

“He’s been there to listen to the younger guys and he’s been ready to help,” said Hardesty, the former 1,000-yard rusher at Tennessee.

Rattler has liked what he’s seen of South Carolina’s skill group. The bonding that started in spring workouts has continued into the summer and Rattler is confident he’ll connect with them through the season.

It took Rattler a little time to shake off going from Heisman hopeful for a College Football Playoff contender last August to someone who mopped up in Sooner blowouts the second half of last season.

“I don’t have to try and prove anything, just get ready to play with these guys,” he said. “That’s the focus.”

South Carolina’s offense used four starting quarterbacks, including former graduate assistant coach Zeb Noland, because of injuries and inconsistencies. The Gamecocks were next to last in the Southeastern Conference in scoring offense (22.6 points a game) and pass offense (201.2 yards a game).

Rattler believes he can bring some stability and perspective to the position after what he went through a year ago.

“I’ve learned a lot, being a quarterback, going through the (transfer) portal, going through adversity, it’s made me realize a lot of different things and see things differently,” he said. “Other than that, I’m the same guy ready to work and have fun.”

James Christopher Leming Century Farm

By Patsy Spencer Richardson
Special to the T-G

Sometime prior to 1901, James Christopher ( J.C.) Leming acquired a piece of land near Normandy in middle Tennessee. There is a record of several transactions where he bought and sold land around Normandy. Our farm is near the Duck River and is about 50 acres in size. It was larger at the time of J.C.'s death and when my grandmother, Lucretia inherited it. She sold a track of the land which is now owned by Bill and Jane Cortner.

J.C. did not know that 100 years later this land would still be owned by his great granddaughter, Patsy Raye Spencer Richardson. The land was originally owned by James Christopher Leming, then passed to his daughter Lucretia Fielder Leming Spencer, her son William Minus Spencer, and great granddaughter Patsy Raye Spencer Richardson.

J.C.'s handwritten will shows he left land to each of his children. The will indicates that J.C. called this farm the River Farm. I still have a copy of his will.

Our family has a long history in Normandy. William Spencer attended Normandy School through high school and played on the school basketball team about 1919. I attended Normandy School through the 5th grade.

The Normandy Methodist church was an important part of the family. Lucretia Spencer, William Spencer, and Patsy Spencer were all members.

My father, William Spencer can be traced on his mother's side back for many generations. J.C., a farmer and railroad foreman penned a family tree stating he was born Dec. 6, 1839 and his wife, Mary Frances Sherrill was born Aug. 23, 1838. They were married June 22, 1861. Their children were: Sarah E. Leming (b. Feb. 16, 1863), Mary Ann Leming (b. Feb 4, 1866), William H. Leming (b. July 7, 1868), Nathan E. Leming (b. Aug. 4, 1871), Lucretia F. Leming (b. Sept. 19, 1873), and James K. Polk Leming (b. March 30, 1877). J.C. died June 21, 1901 and his wife, Mary died May 24, 1904.

The J.C. Leming home was located outside of Normandy on the Tullahoma-Normandy Road. It was later the home of J.C.'s son, James K. Polk Leming. When this home burned, the large family tree was lost. James K. Polk gave Patsy Spencer Richardson a smaller family tree. This original document still exists. J.C. and Mary are buried in the Green Cemetery near Carr Creek Road in Normandy along with some of their children. Lucretia Spencer was buried at Bethany Cemetery in Coffee County and William Spencer was buried at Hillcrest Cemetery in Shelbyville, TN.

We have many memories on the farm, My Uncle and Aunt, Hoyte and Pansye Spencer, and I, all had October birthdays. We celebrated with a family visit in Normandy. We always went out to the farm and enjoyed fall outings and collected walnuts and hickory nuts, which we later used in Christmas cakes and candies.

The farm was mostly used for cattle grazing until 2013. In 2013, Chris Carney with the Tennessee Division of Forestry helped to transition the farm to a hardwood plantation. In 2014, the farm was planted with 5,500 yellow poplar, seedlings and 500 seedlings each of White Oak, Black Oak, Shumack Oak, and Chinkapin Oak. The management objective of this area is to sustainably produce timber/wood products, and to increase wildlife.

This farm was awarded a certificate from the State of Tennessee on May 9, 2001, as a Century Farm.

We encourage other Bedford County Century Farm owners to share their stories about their families and the legacy which lives on—the Century Farm.
