Private Act, wheel tax split commission; motion fails amid 'distrust'

By ZOË WATKINS
zwatkins@t-g.com

A motion to introduce and authorize a Private Act that would empower the Bedford County Commission to enact a Motor Vehicle Privilege Tax ("wheel tax") failed at Tuesday's commission meeting.

The commission was split 9-9. The vote came after a lengthy session of public comments and discussion from the commission.

The goal of the motion was to give the county the option to utilize a wheel tax in order to fund school resource officers in every school, according to Commissioner Tony Smith who motioned the resolution at the last Financial Management Committee meeting.

Though most commissioners and citizens who made comments were for the idea of getting an SRO in every school, the issue was how the wheel tax was going to be enacted — through a Private Act versus a referendum. Essentially, the consensus among the opposition was that a private act takes away the vote from the people.

However, Commissioner Linda Yockey, who seconded Smith's previous motion, explained that the vote was only to allow and provide the commission an option for a wheel tax.

"Property owners in my district are tired of being the only ones to fund the county. Fifteen thousand property owners out of a population of 50,000 carry the burden for the whole county," said Yockey.

She continued, "Should monies be needed and a referendum were asked this year, it would be December — at the earliest — before a special election could be called for at a cost of $30,000. So, you might as well wait for the March primary." According to Yockey, if this referendum were to fail, another year will have gone by.

Yockey also said based on precedence and past decision, a referendum will not pass in this county.

"In 1988, under Paul Parker, it was a no. A wheel tax in 2005 under Jimmy Woodson, no. A wheel tax in 2016 under Mayor

A "Flip the Switch" ceremony was held for the Vanderbilt I Solar Farm on Frank Martin Road Tuesday.

This partnership is the first of its kind under the new TVA Green Invest Program, which matches demand for green power from large business and industrial customers.

"The energy generated goes on to the TVA grid with that energy comes a renewable energy certificate that is required by someone to have who says they're using green energy," said Matt Kisber, Board Chairman for Silicon Ranch. "Those certificates will be retired on Vanderbilt's behalf so it offsets Vanderbilt's energy consumption."

Vanderbilt is served by Nashville Electric Service (NES) which is served by TVA. Essentially, Silicon Ranch sells the power to TVA, who in turn works with NES and Vanderbilt.

Last January, the solar farm held a groundbreaking event amid rain and mud. But on the bright, clear Tuesday, visitors could see in full the rows of solar panels soaking up the sun.

With over 150,000 solar modules, Silicon Ranch has invested more than $50 million to install the project which will generate 35 megawatts of energy through the Tennessee Valley Authority. Nashville-based Silicon Ranch is the largest owner and operator of solar facilities in the TVA valley, according to Kisber.

Solar Energy Industries Association (a U.S. trade association) calculates that on average one megawatt of solar power generates enough electricity to meet the needs of 164 U.S. homes. Essentially, what could power 5,740 houses will be going to Vanderbilt.

Vanderbilt Chancellor Daniel Diermeier, who attended the event Tuesday, said the solar field will reduce the university's electrical power use by 70 percent.

Since January, some 250 craft workers were hired for the project, including some recruited

Robert "Bob" Carlson Wolf

April 4, 2023

Robert "Bob" Carlson Wolf passed away on April 4, 2023, after battling cancer. He was born on November 7, 1952, in Port Huron, Michigan.

Bob was soft spoken and loving with a wonderfully dry sense of humor. Bob was a fabulous husband and family man who loved spending time with his family. Being a musician, and particularly a guitar player, Bob played huge venues throughout Nashville, like the Wild Horse Saloon, with a well-known local band called Whiskey Run, and he recorded music for all of his daughters' Brownie Troop events. He loved music, and you could often see him moving his fingers as he played in his mind.

Bob also served for many years as a police officer both in Texas and in Tennessee. He was the type of officer we need today, treating everyone with dignity and respect. Bob was also a top marksman, winning competitions and training other officers and prospective officers on the safe and efficient use of their firearms. Bob retired from the La Vergne Police Department with the rank of Captain.

Bob was one in a million and will be sorely missed. Bob was preceded in death by his father, Carl Wolf, and mother, Betty Nasmith. He is survived by his wife, Sara Wolf; daughters, Carly Wolf and Caity Luter; granddaughter, Piper Luter; and many other beloved family members and friends.

No services are scheduled at this time.

Tax

(Continued from Page 1) [Eugene] Ray, no...and as soon as those referendums failed, there was a property tax increase," said Yockey.

First-year Commissioner Eric Maddox, who made the motion for Tuesday's public comments to be added to the agenda, was vocal against the private act. He called out Yockey during the meeting, saying he received a call from her on March 7 where she gave him a heads-up on the resolution. He said he voiced his disapproval of the process in how the wheel tax motion got on the agenda — or rather how it was not on the agenda at the financial committee meeting, leaving citizens in the dark.

"A handful of you here in this room have succeeded in circumventing the citizens that trusted and voted you into office," he said. "I strongly feel that how we got here today is disrespectful to the citizens of the county and inappropriately handled at best.

"Overall, I feel that people do not trust this local government administration. And, quite frankly, I don't blame them because I don't either," Maddox said.

In a similar sentiment, first-year Commissioner Drew Hooker said, "I have received dozens of phone calls, messages, voice-mails, and texts with a very obviously frustrated and furious community that has felt betrayed by the very elected officials they trusted to serve them.

"We need to dive into this budget and find money, not always raise taxes," said Hooker.

However, Commissioner Smith who's been on the commission for 20 years, said, "Currently, this county is spending every dollar of our taxpayer's money the way that the prior commission voted it to be spent."

He also cited how the cost of materials and equipment has continued to go up, which puts a larger burden on the taxpayer as decision are delayed. In other words, short-term thinking ends in long-term debt.

Smith said, "We need a couple more wings added to the schools; we need ambulances, firetrucks, police cars, a juvenile detention...If you add all this up, we're looking at $20 million that's needed right now in Bedford County. If we wait, it's going to be seven or eight years before we can borrow this kind of money. How much is this $20 million going to be in eight years from now? We're going to add another eight to 10 million dollars to our tax payers. This is what I'm trying to avoid."

This decision also came right before the Gov. Bill Lee announced a plan of more than $200 million that would put SROs in

"We recognize as Bedford County, clearly, renewable energy has got to be a part of the future... This really brought it front and center," said Bedford Mayor Chad Graham. "They have been tremendous community partners with Shelbyville and Bedford County."

The Vanderbilt "brand" has also been an integral part of Bedford, according to Graham, because of the hospital on U.S. 231 as well as educational opportunities in high school CTE programs.

Silicon Ranch donated 30 acres of their project site to the 231 Industrial Park, specifically for the Duksan Electera site.

every school. However, Smith said these funds will only pay part of the total cost to fund the nine SROs needed.

Commissioner Biff Farrar read off data from the County Technical Advisory Service (CTAS), which state 59 counties across Tennessee have a wheel tax, while 36 do not (this includes Bedford).

Commissioner Adam Thomas suggested citizens vote for the wheel tax only if it goes to referendum and a detailed plan is laid out for how SROs will be funded.

"I do not believe that it is our right course of action to circumvent the people's right to vote on something that has always been their right to vote on. We cannot go around something solely based on the fact we believe the people of Bedford County will vote against it," he said.

Public comments

Kathy Reed, principal of Deery-Eakin Elementary and someone who has been an educator in the community for 36 years, spoke in support of the motion. She said SROs are needed today, not only for intruders, but also to protect educators against upset parents.

"I've had situations in the last two weeks where I've needed support," she said. "While I don't want anyone's taxes raised, it is time to protect our children and do what's right...We elected you to do what's right for our community and sometimes you have to make a hard decision."

Gene Vedak, who was a police officer for 27 years, said he was in the middle on the issue. He said after contacting the clerk's office, he found out there are almost 53,000 vehicles in the county, and essentially, a $10 wheel tax wouldn't be enough, and a $75 tax would be too much. "I think we need to be transparent...and say this is where the money is going," he said.

Or as Brooke Sanders put it, "If you want to take a private act, that's fine. But have a detailed plan. Show us where the money is going."

Many who spoke were against the private act.

Resident Stephanie Rieford said, "What really concerns me is how the decision is being made. And, honestly, I'm not sure if everyone on this committee truly represents our community."

Then, there were a few concerned citizens who were against the wheel tax all together.

To sum up the overall feeling from citizens in attendance, resident John Clark said, "You've got enough money; you don't need my wheel tax money."

community-identified priorities."

"We will remain invested in and committed to the continued success and economic viability of this region for decades to come," said Kisber. "We consider it an honor to collaborate with the Shelbyville-Bedford Partnership to support this community's successful efforts."

AG: Guardsman to be charged with removing classified info

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Massachusetts Air National Guard member who has emerged as a main person of interest in the disclosure of highly classified military documents on the Ukraine war was taken into custody Thursday by federal agents, Attorney General Merrick Garland announced.

Investigators believe that the guardsman, who specializes in intelligence, led the online chat group where the documents were posted. Garland identified the guardsman as 21-year-old Jack Teixeira, and said he would be charged with the unauthorized removal of classified national defense information.

FBI agents converged Thursday at Teixeira's Massachusetts home and heavily armed tactical agents took Teixeira, who was wearing a T-shirt and shorts, into custody outside the property, "without incident," Garland said.

He will be charged with unauthorized removal of classified national defense information, Garland said, and will have an initial court appearance in federal court in Massachusetts.

It was not immediately clear if Teixeira had a lawyer who could speak on his behalf, and a phone message left at a number believed to belong to his mother was not immediately returned.

Law enforcement officials roped off the street near the home. The New York Times, which first identified Teixeira on Thursday, said that a man who had been standing outside the Teixeira home earlier said that "he needs to get an attorney if things are flowing the way they are going right now. The Feds will be around soon, I'm sure."

The emergence of Teixeira as the apparent primary suspect is bound to raise questions about how the highest-profile intelligence leak in years, one that continues to unfold with almost daily revelations of highly classified documents, could have been caused by such a young, low-ranking service member.

The Biden administration has scrambled for days to contain the fallout from the leaked information, which has publicized potential vulnerabilities in Ukraine's air defense capabilities and exposed private assessments by allies on an array of intelligence matters.

The National Guard did not confirm his identity but said in a statement that, "We are aware of the investigation into the alleged role a Massachusetts Air National Guardsman may have played in the recent leak of highly-classified documents."

Air Force Brig. Gen. Pat Ryder, the Pentagon spokesman, referred all questions about the case to the Justice Department. But he said: "We have rules in place. Each of us signs a nondisclosure agreement. This is a criminal act, a willful violation of those."

The Biden administration has been working to assess the diplomatic and national security consequences of the leaked documents since they were first reported last week. A top Pentagon spokesman told reporters earlier this week that the disclosures present a "very serious risk to national security," and the Justice Department opened an investigation to identify the person responsible.

"We're getting close," President Joe Biden told reporters in Ireland on Thursday. He said that though he was concerned that sensitive government documents had been disclosed, "there's nothing contemporaneous that I'm aware of that is of great consequence."

The Justice Department declined to comment Thursday.

It's possible the leak may have started on a site called Discord, a social media platform popular with people playing online games. The Discord site hosts real-time voice, video and text chats for groups and describes itself as a place "where you can belong to a school club, a gaming group, or a worldwide art community."

In one of those forums, originally created to talk about a range of topics, members would debate the war in Ukraine. According to one member of the chat, an unidentified poster shared documents that the poster claimed were classified, first typing them out with the poster's own thoughts, then, as of a few months ago, uploading images of folded papers.

Discord has said it was cooperating with law enforcement.

There are only a few ways the classified information that was leaked could have been accessed, which may provide critical clues as to who is responsible. Typically in classified briefings, as with the slides that were placed on Discord, the information is shared electronically.

That is done either through secure computer terminals where users gain access based on their credentials or through tablets that are distributed for briefings and collected afterward. If the slides need to be printed out instead, they can only be sent to secured printers that are able to handle classified documents — and that keep a digital record of everyone who has requested a printout.

It's those digital clues like the record of printouts that may help investigators hone in on who took the documents. In most of the photographs of documents posted online the pictures are of paper copies that look like they had been folded into quarters — almost as if they'd been stuffed into someone's pocket.

In the days since the leaks came to light, the Pentagon has deferred questions on the investigation to the Justice Department, stating that it's a criminal matter. Even if the person who leaked the files is an active duty member of the U.S. military, the Justice Department would likely still have the lead in the prosecution until it was ready to turn the matter over to the Defense Department, a defense official told the AP on the condition of anonymity to discuss sensitive matters.

This has been the case in previous criminal cases, such as when two Marines based at Camp Pendleton in California were arrested on drug trafficking charges in 2020, the official said. If the person responsible turns out to be a civilian, the Justice Department will be responsible, the official said.

Pillow hack saves your neck

Dear Heloise: When buying new pillows, they can sometimes be too fluffy, so when sleeping, the neck can stay in an uncomfortable position and even hurt in the morning. So, people do not end up using the pillow, either returning it or giving it away and buying another pillow to try.

I have several pillows that I could not use because of the over-stuffed filling. But then, I opened a 4-inch hole at the seam, removed a couple of handfuls of stuffing and sewed the hole closed by hand or by sewing machine. This saved my neck and pocketbook, and now I have several pillows -- for myself and guests. -- Cathy Delgado, via email a fire, put some of these under the kindling with larger pieces of wood on top. Light the balls with a match, and you'll quickly have your fire.

I've started fires with these during my eight years in the military, along with numerous camping trips for 60 years. I carry them in Altoid tins inside emergency kits for my cars and in my camping packs. Is this safe? Yes. Sparks or embers won't ignite them, only a flame will light them. -- John "JR" R. STORING GOOD CHINA

Dear Readers: If you have just inherited old family china or purchased new china, storing it properly is important to prevent chipping or breaking. So, when you first put the china into a cabinet, place a coffee filter, paper towel or paper napkin in between each piece while storing. -- Heloise

DRYER LINT BALLS

Dear Heloise: A few weeks ago, a reader sent in a hint regarding storing dryer lint that I read in the Los Angeles Daily News. The hint was about storing dryer lint in a tissue box and then using it to burn the wood in her fireplace. It will work, but dryer lint is highly combustible. Storing it in a tissue box doesn't protect it from an errant spark or ember.

What I do instead is mix dryer lint with petroleum jelly. Then I roll the mixture into balls, 1 inch in diameter. I soak the lint thoroughly, but I'm still be able to roll it into balls. Store them in a container or even a zip-close bag.

"Don't Worry Be Happy"

"Don't Worry, Be Happy!" Bobby McFerrin released that song in the fall of 1988, and it went on to win several top Grammy Awards in 1989. If you were around in the late 80s and early 90s, you'll remember, "Don't Worry, Be Happy!"

It was a song that had a catchy tune and people walked around singing it to themselves throughout the day.

McFerrin says in his song, "In every life we have some trouble, When you worry you make it double, Don't worry, be happy.... Ain't got no place to lay your head, Somebody came and took your bed, Don't worry, be happy....The landlord say your rent is late, He may have to litigate, Don't worry, be happy....Cause when you worry your face will frown, And that will bring everybody down, So don't worry, be happy..."

It's real easy to tell somebody else not to worry, but it's not always real easy to put into practice.

What is it they say? Oh yeah, "It's easier said than done."

The word on the street, and on ABC, CBS, NBC, and CNN and Fox News, is that we are facing some truly historic difficulties in our nation and around the world.

But Bobby McFerrin (who was quoting words from Indian mystic Meher Baba) said, "Don't worry, be happy!"

Unemployment is high and we are facing crisis after crisis across the country. But McFerrin and Baba both say, "Don't worry, be happy!"

Yes, I know, easier said than done.

But there are times we need to be reminded not to worry.

I've known people

Doug Dezotell

Musings and Memories

who worried all the time, about every little thing. Worrying never solved their problems, it only made them miserable.

Someone once said, "Worry is like a rocking chair—it gives you something to do but it doesn't get you anywhere."

We are faced with all kinds of things in life that we could be worrying about, but we need to focus on more productive things than worry.

And it's not good enough to just tell someone not to worry but be happy.

There must be some solution.

The Apostle Paul wrote, "Don't worry about anything; instead, pray about everything (THERE IT IS). Tell God what you need and thank Him for all He has done. Then you will experience God's peace, which exceeds anything we can understand. His peace will guard your hearts and minds as you live in Christ Jesus." (Philippians 4:6-7, NLT)

We can spend our lives learning how to pray, how to turn our worries and our cares over to God.

We never stop learning.

But, the only way I've ever found to let go of worry was to pray. It's not always easy, but there are things we just have to work hard for.

True peace of mind can only come from God; and He is waiting to help us find it.

He has given us the avenue of prayer to reach out to Him in our times of need.

Lynn and I have reminders throughout our house that we need to look to God for our help in times of trouble and in times of peace as well.

I have a cross hanging over my chest of drawers that reminds me "It is Well with My Soul."

Lynn has put up plaques in our kitchen that read "Blessed," "Faith Over Fear," "Faith, Hope, Love," and "Hallelujah, He is Risen."

I have inspirational wall hangings in my home office strategically placed over my desk to be constant reminders.

One is a print of Jesus walking on stormy waters with His hand stretched out toward me that says, "FOCUS ON ME, not on the Storm."

On a large wooden plaque right above my computer monitor is a quote from Jeremiah 29:11. It says, "For I know the plans I have for you," declares the LORD, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future."

Years back, I went through a rough period in my life with numerous hospitalizations and surgeries.

I learned just how meaningful it is to have others praying for me.

I didn't spend my days worrying during those times. I prayed and I knew others were praying for me.

I woke up in my hospital bed one day and I saw my friend, Dennis Pratt from Memphis, Tennessee, sitting across from me with his head bowed in prayer. He was praying for me, and it brought me great comfort.

One of the women in the church I was pastoring at the time, brought me a prayer shawl that she had crocheted, and laid that over me. It had been prayed over by the folks at the church and that brought me great comfort.

Another one of the women in my church, brought me a quilt that she had made. Around the edges of that quilt, she had stitched this prayer: "Lord, we thank you that you are always ready to help. Surround Doug with your love and grant him peace of mind, peace of heart, and peace of soul. Wrap him in your tender care. Amen."

We can find comfort and peace in times of trouble, if we learn to pray and learn to depend on the prayers of others.

In Psalm 46 we read, "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore we will not fear..."

We all need to learn Apostle Paul's admonition, "Don't worry about anything, but pray about everything."

Doug Dezotell is the pastor of Cannon UMC. He's sweet Lynn's husband, and the father of 3 amazing children, and the grandfather to 3 beautiful granddaughters. He can be contacted at 931-607-5191 or at dougndezotell@gmail.com. Have a great day and a wonderful week! I love you! Thank you for reading! Don't worry! Be Happy!

Psalm 23
King James Version
23 The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

2 He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters.

3 He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

4 Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

5 Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

6 Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

State History Day Competition

NASHVILLE — After months of research and success in local and regional competitions, over 200 students from across Tennessee will compete for honors at the annual Tennessee History Day (THD) competition in Nashville today.

Each year, all research topics are based on a specific theme. This year's theme is "Frontiers in History: People, Places, Ideas." While all projects must relate to the annual theme, students are encouraged to be creative in their execution. Students presented their work at regional competitions in various ways by creating exhibits, documentaries, performances, websites or papers.

Prior to the state competition, regional contests took place in Greeneville (Tusculum College), Knoxville (East Tennessee Historical Society and the University of Tennessee), Nashville (Tennessee State University), Murfreesboro (Middle Tennessee State University), and Memphis (University of Memphis).

Winners from the state contest in Nashville will advance to National History Day (NHD), held in College Park, Maryland, on June 11-15, 2023. Students will showcase their hard work during the national competition and compete for awards and scholarships.

The NHD program annually engages over a half million sixth through twelfth grades students from 50 states, the District of Columbia, Guam, American Samoa, and Department of Defense Schools. Each fall, students and teachers nationwide begin the year-long National History Day program and go on to compete in a series of contests in their local communities and states. The top students in each category are selected to participate in the national contest.

More than just a day, Tennessee History Day is a year-round program that allows participating students to learn by researching their own topics using primary source documents. The program engages 7,300 students in grades 6-12 across Tennessee.

The Secretary of State's office proudly sponsors Tennessee History Day. For more information, please visit tennesseehistory.org/ tennessee-history-day.

School threat resolved

T-G STAFF REPORT

Harris Middle went on soft lockdown Wednesday afternoon after a threat was reported to administration around 1:20 p.m. The soft lockdown, which was to make sure no one came in or out of the buildings, was also implemented at Shelbyville Central High School and Learning Way Elementary. Those schools came out of lockdown at 2:15, while Harris began dismissal at 3:17.

The regular dismissal time was deferred due to a thorough search of every student, backpack, and locker. Two SROs as well as the Shelbyville Police Department were called on site. According to school communication's director Carol Garrette, the lockdown came about after a student said they possibly overheard a threat from another student and reported it to a teacher. Even after a thorough investigation, the threat was never confirmed, according to Garrette.

I'VE SPENT ALL WEEKEND DOING TAXES.

YOU SHOULD TAKE A BREAK.

I COULD HAVE BEEN PLAYING GOLF TODAY.

OR CLEANING THE GARAGE.

LOOK AT THE BRIGHT SIDE.

YOU HAVE A FEW EXTRA DAYS THIS YEAR.

I AM NOT WAITING UNTIL THE LAST MINUTE!

SLYLOCK FOX

BY BOB WEBER JR.

A bank teller reported to Slylock Fox that Harry Ape forced her to fill a sack with money. But before he grabbed it and fled, she discreetly took a bottle from her purse and poured the contents into the sack. Harry Ape insists he is being framed, but one of Slylock's senses tells him Harry is clutching the stolen money. What did the teller pour into the sack?

Solution -- Slylock's sense of smell detected the strong scent of perfume that the teller poured into the sack.

Eagles keep rolling, sweep Warren Co.

SHELBYVILLE — The cardiac kids showed up again as Shelbyville Central's Golden Eagles rallied in the bottom of the seventh inning to claim a 6-5 win over visiting Warren County in a District 6 4-A matchup on Monday night.

Trailing 5-3 going into the bottom seventh inning, the Eagles rallied to score three runs and claim the victory.

Lead-off hitter William Bobo stroked a single to right field, Jaquai Beverly beat out an infield error. Then Carston Williams had a bunt single to load the bases with no outs.

Nick Johnson hit a sacrifice fly to score Bobo, Caden Thomas got hit by a pitch then Kyler Trice delivered a two-run, walk-off double.

"Tonight wasn't the prettiest win in the world, but it was an extremely important district win nonetheless," Shelbyville Central coach Chase Jones said.

The Eagles (9-9, 3-4) pushed three runs across the plate in the bottom half of the first frame but Warren County answered with a five-run second to take the lead.

Beverly went the distance for the winners, allowing one earned run with three hits while striking out 10 batters with five walks.

"Jaquai came out with a strong top of the first inning and we had a very productive bottom half and put up three runs. The top of the second was about as ugly as it gets with several errors and walks and five runs later, we found ourselves down by two runs. As ugly as the top of the second was, it was a crucial stepping stone in the maturation of our team. We have focused many hours working with our guys on being more mentally tough than our opponent. Mental toughness is very easy to explain, but much more difficult to achieve. It is simply having the ability to forget what happened the previous pitch, and completely focusing in on the next pitch."

Shelbyville Central and Beverly refocused and found a way to stay in the game.

"Focus is the ability to tune out everything, don't think and just react and trust to whatever happens, said Jones. "Trust that the hours of preparation you have put in and done a thousand times will enable you to make the play. We kind of lost our ability to focus in the second inning and let one mistake compile into another mistake. Our guys were knocked back on their heels, but got out of the inning. Jaquai and our defense were able to put up 0s the next five innings on the scoreboard."

Baler Melton turned in a fine performance on the mound as well, fanning six batters with a pair of walks in a 11-hit effort to go the distance.

"Melton for Warren County was effective at keeping our guys off balance most the night. We just kept battling and believing we would find a way," Jones said. "We are capable and have to play much better as we approach the district tournament, but I'm very proud of our guys for persevering and finding a way to win a very important district match up."

Trice ripped a pair of double and collected three RBIs while Bobo and Williams contributed three singles each followed by Beverly with a double.

Alex VanVauren's double was the top lick for the Pioneers.

Viqueens stun Forrest with Tate's walk-off blast

By CHRIS SIERS

UNIONVILLE — Last season, Community met Forrest five times on the softball diamond and all five times, the Lady Rockets were able to find wins against the Viqueens, including two, one-run victories.

On Tuesday night, Community broke a streak against its backyard rival Forrest for their first win in several years on a walk-off, two-run bomb off the bat of freshman Alana Tate as the Viqueens rallied for a 7-6 win in a key District 7-AA matchup.

The game got off to a quick start for the Lady Rockets, who were able to scoot lead-off batter Macyn Kirby around the bases and score her off a Carli Warner RBI single.

The Lady Rocket lead was short-lived as Community struck back with a pair of runs in the bottom of the first inning on RBI singles by Zoey Dixon and Tate, giving Community a 2-1 lead.

That score stood until the Lady Rockets pushed the tying run across the plate in the third inning on a Taylor Goodman RBI single.

Forrest went on to take the lead on a three-run homer in the fourth inning off the bat of Sarah King.

The Lady Rockets stretched their lead, and seemingly their grip on the lead, in the top of the seventh inning with a sac-fly RBI, bumping their advantage to 6-2.

With their backs against the wall, Community came out swinging in the bottom of the seventh and led off with three-straight singles by Anna Haskins, Abby Murrill and Abi Brown.

Haskins scored the first run of the inning on a throwing error by Forrest and then Dixon knocked in two more runs on a double to center field, bringing Tate to the plate.

With one on and trailing by two with no outs, Tate smashed the game-winning home run to left field to give the Viqueens their walk-off victory and take a key win in the District 7-AA race.

Tate was the top run producer for the Viqueens, driving in three runs and going 2-for-3 with the game-winner.

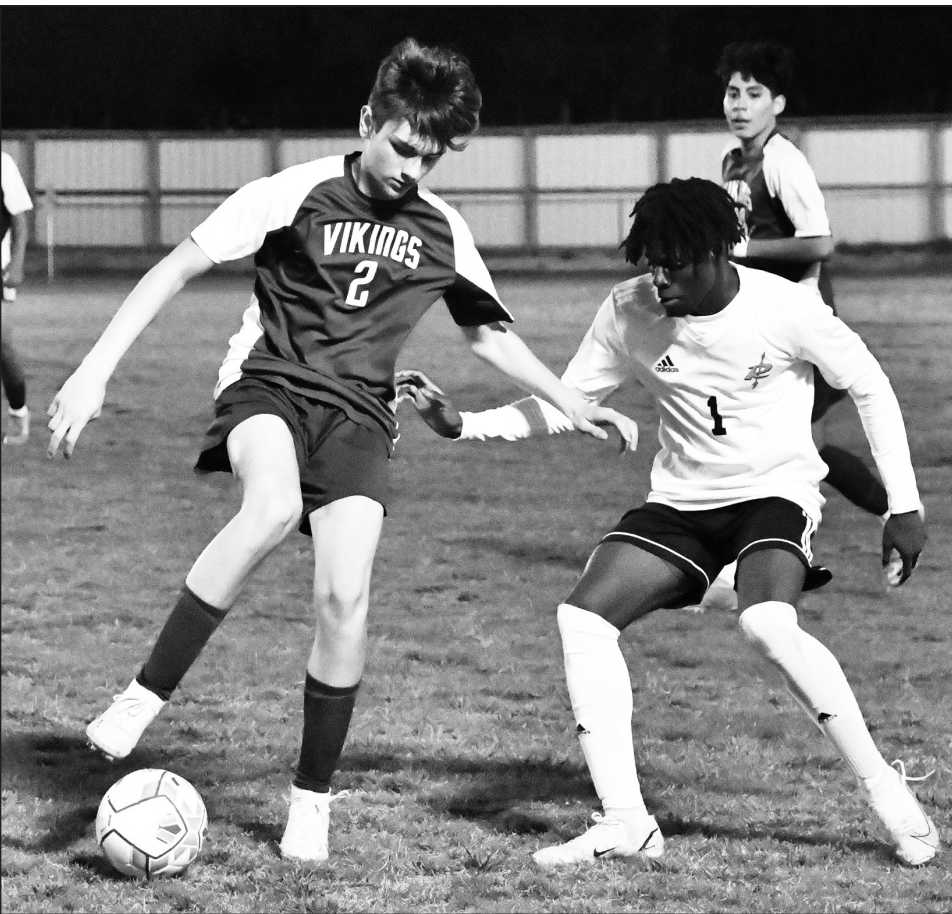

Dixon also had a stellar night at the plate, going 2-for-4 with three RBIs as well.

Annie Prince got the start in the circle and pitched five innings, giving up five runs on nine hits before Haskins took over and pitched the final two innings.

Haskins gave up one run on four hits.

UNIONVILLE — The Community Vikings scored just a minute into the game and took a big halftime lead en route to a 5-1 win over the Richland Raiders in a non-district soccer contest Tuesday night.

Community (3-1-1, 0-1) recorded its first goal as Randy Anica put the ball in the back of the net off a corner from Ramon Hernandez as the Vikings took a 1-0 lead.

The Vikings added their second goal in the 10th minute as Andrew Montalvo rebounded his own penalty kick into the net after a deflection from the keeper to give Community a 2-0 advantage.

The Vikings made it 3-0 and ended the first half scoring as Hernandez drilled a direct kick into the right side of the goal in the 13th minute.

“We started off pretty hot in the first 20 minutes and kind of just relaxed and played sloppy after that,” Coach Jesse Cooper of the Vikings said.

There was a long dry spell in goals before the Raiders sent home a direct kick in the 57th minute to cut the Viking lead to 3-1.

A Hernandez goal in the 63rd minute gave Community its first goal of the second half and put the Vikings up 4-1.

Hernandez made it a hat trick with a goal off an assist from Anica in the closing seconds as the Vikings finished the scoring for the night.

“We wanted to use this week after we lost to Forrest to bounce back,” Cooper said.

For the Eaglettes, Caitlyn Burdick, Alyssa Fanning and Ryann Samons all took singles victories, with Burdick and Samons taking an 8-2 doubles victory, while Fanning and Addie Berry added an 8-3 win for the Eaglettes.

Vikings starting pitcher Mason Russell struck out 10 batters on Tuesday night against the Champions.

Streaking Champs cap sweep of Community

BELL BUCKLE — On back-to-back nights, the Cascade Champions and the Community Vikings met on their respective diamonds for a pair of District 7-AA games, and the Champions won both with a 13-3 victory on Monday night in Unionville and a 4-2 victory in Bell Buckle on Tuesday night.

Tuesday night's win marked five-straight and back-to-back district sweeps for the Champions after starting the season 1-9.

“The biggest thing is that our guys are getting comfortable in their positions. Early on we were trying to get these guys figured out, and see who can and who can't,” Cascade head coach Travis Sheffield said.

“Every game it was a different lineup and positioning. I think now we kind of have something concrete and the guys are going out there with a lot more confidence. It's shown in the last five games.”

Cascade (6-9, 4-2) took an early 3-0 lead in the first inning after putting the Vikings (4-12, 2-3) down in order in the top half, and followed it up with four hits to plate three runs in the bottom half with Chance Brown leading off with a triple.

Vikings starting pitcher Mason Russell got out of the inning with a strikeout for his first of the game, and followed it up with three straight in the bottom of the second.

He totaled 10 strikeouts on the night before being replaced in the bottom of the sixth inning.

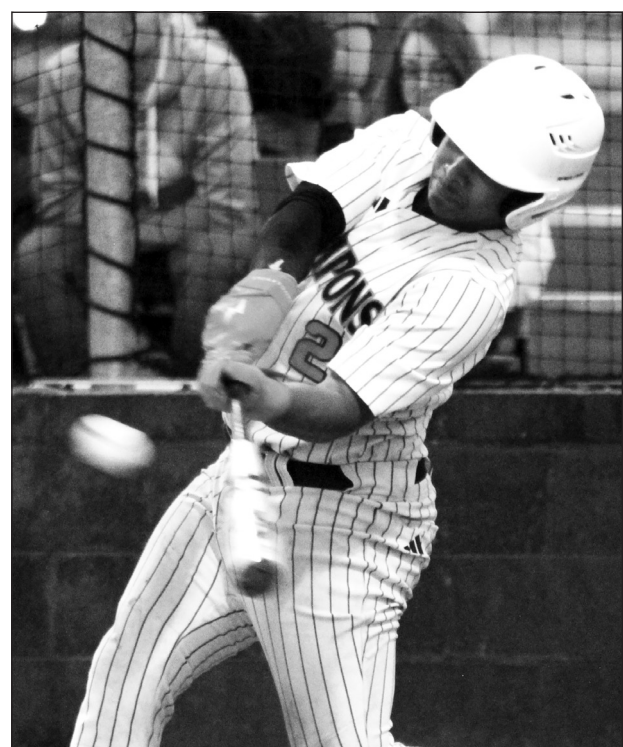

In the bottom of the fifth inning, Russell found himself in a bases-loaded jam after walking the first three batters he faced, but was able to force three consecutive outs to get out of the inning.

Vikings head coach Robbie Davis credited Russell for his maturity and growth from a season ago.

“Mason's been in some big spots on the mound. Last year he settled in as our No. 2 guy, but this year he's worked up to our No. 1,” Davis said.

“You could tell, composure wise, where a younger pitcher would have fallen apart, he focused on making the pitch. He's a veteran guy that's been through a lot and has learned the game. As he goes, we go.”

After two hitless innings to start the game, the Vikings found some offense in the top of the third inning when Corey Paterick knocked a two-out double to score Thomas Bowling from second for a 3-1 game.

Champion senior Jaxon Sheffield turns and launches a ball over the center field wall for a solo home run. He went 2-for-3 at the plate Tuesday night.

Cascade answered back with one run in the bottom half off the bat of Jaxon Sheffield who launched a two-out home run shot over the center field wall to make it 4-1.

Sheffield went 2-for-3 at the plate with the one RBI on the night, and made some key defensive plays at third base to lead the Champions.

“He showed up at the ballpark and didn't know he was playing third base. He normally pitches on Tuesdays, but he had to pitch last night and play third tonight with Walker Craig being dinged up. He made the first couple of outs, played well, and grinded at the plate,” Sheffield said.

The Vikings found their rhythm at the plate in the top of the fourth inning as they knocked three straight singles to load the bases, and Bowling followed it up with a hard ground ball to score Blaine Paschal from third to make it 4-2.

Paschal led the Vikings with a 2-for-3 performance at the plate.

After Russell struck out the side for his second time in the bottom of the fourth, the Vikings found themselves with two runners on base and one out in the top of the fifth.

Sheffield elected to make a pitching change, and brought Brown in from the outfield to take the mound in place of Logan Green, who came in the game in the fourth inning for Zach Crosslin.

After the change, Cascade secured the final two outs of the inning in one at-bat with catcher

Noah McGeary catching a runner stealing and Brown fanning the batter three pitches later.

Brown was credited with the win after tossing 2 and 2/3 innings with four strikeouts.

“If we plan on going as far as I think we can go, it's gonna take a lot of arms. Having those guys come in and throw quality innings is big,” Sheffield said. “I need them to believe that we can go six deep in the bullpen. We don't have a number one guy, and I tell all six of them to be ready to start because it can be any of them any night.”

An inning later, Community was within striking distance again with runners on first and second, but ultimately couldn't push any runs across as Brown struck out the final batter of the inning.

Outside of a single from the Vikings in the top of the seventh inning, neither team got much going in the final frame.

For Davis, the early lead Community gave up and missed opportunities with runners on proved costly.

“Going back to the first inning we made a bad play right off the bat on the leadoff guy by not keeping the ball in front of us, and they got a triple out of it. They took advantage of that mistake, put the ball in play and put a three spot up,” Davis said. “For us, we get a lot of guys on but the bottom of our lineup can't turn it over. We had some situations like that tonight.”

Melson's 3 RBI night leads Champs past Vikes

UNIONVILLE — An early lead, padded by a six-run fourth inning gave Cascade a 13-3 win over county rival Community Monday night.

Conner Melson went 2-for-4 and drove in three runs, while starting pitcher Jaxon Sheffield helped his own cause by going 1-for-3 with two RBIS as well.

Cascade knocked in the game's first run when Sheffield grounded out to first, scoring Chance Brown from third base.

Walker Craig padded the lead with a little two-out magic in the third on a ground ball single, scoring two more for a 3-0 Cascade lead.

Community got one back in the bottom of the third following a leadoff walk by Zackary Berman.

He later scored on a Corey Paterick RBI single.

But Cascade blew the game open with a six-spot in the fourth inning.

In the fourth, the Champions put their first six batters on base and connected on a pair of extra base hits, highlighted by Melson's two RBI double.

Leading 9-2, the Champs tacked on two more runs in the fifth coming on a Noah McGeary RBI and a RBI triple off the bat of Sheffield.

Community struck back in the bottom half of the inning, plating two off RBI singles by Fleming and James Beech, but the Champs went on to add two more runs, one in the sixth and one in the seventh for the final margin of victory.

McGeary, Sheffield, Sawyer Lovvorn and Craig each drove in two runs against the Vikings, while Melson knocked in three to lead the Champs.

Sheffield pitched five strong innings for the Champs and struck out 12 to take the win on the mound.

Blaine Paschal got the nod for the Vikings and pitched four innings, allowing nine runs on six hits while striking out seven.

The Cascade Champions (2-3-1) got some looks in their offensive half early in their Tuesday night game with the Tullahoma Wildcats (8-1), but couldn't produce a goal while the Wildcats netted six first half goals on their way to an 8-0 win. The Champions will be back in action for a District 7-AA matchup with the Forrest Rockets in Chapel Hill on Thursday at 5 p.m.

Eagles roll past Coffee County

T-G STAFF REPORT

MANCHESTER — Shelbyville Central's Golden Eagles rolled to a 5-1 victory over District 6-AAA foe Coffee County on Tuesday night.

We started off a little slow, but found our rhythm after some early goals.

Ryan Tacuba put the Eagles (4-3-1, 2-0) on the board first, scoring off a set piece from a Kolby Themm free kick.

Shelbyville Central's second goal was a strike from distance by Daniel Torres followed by a Yahir Cervantes diving header from another free kick from Themm.

Freshman Fernando Gallardo finished the game with two goals for the Eagles.

"The boys are slowly coming into their own and we are learning more about our team and their abilities every day. We still have to learn to keep team's shut-out, but our depth is growing," Shelbyville Central coach Chris Fritz said. "Each guy is learning their role and opening up to new ideas every day."

The Eagles faced Franklin County at home on Thursday night, however results were unavailable by press time.

DeRozan's daughter goes viral in play-in game

TORONTO (AP) — Diar DeRozan wanted to skip a day of school. Her father grudgingly went along with the plan.

Turns out, the decision was worth shouting about.

The 9-year-old daughter of Chicago guard DeMar DeRozan stole the show at the play-in tournament on Wednesday night with shrieks from the stands that went viral and quite possibly played a role in helping the Bulls defeat the Toronto Raptors 109-105 in an Eastern Conference elimination game.

Her ear-splitting shouts would come when the Raptors — her dad's former team — were shooting free throws, and they were loud enough to even become a conversation point during the ESPN broadcast of the game. The Raptors finished 18 of 36 from the line in their season-ending loss.

"My daughter called me the other day when she was getting out of school and she just said, 'Dad, can I come to the Toronto game?'" DeRozan said. "I remember her going to all the Toronto games when she was a kid and I almost said no because she's in school back home. But she kept asking. She was just adamant about coming to support and I said, 'All right, you can miss one day of school and come to a game.'"

"I'm glad I did," DeRozan said. "I owe her some money for sure."

The 18-for-36 showing was Toronto's worst of the season from the foul line.

"Not a great free throw night for us in general," Toronto's Pascal Siakam said.

The Bulls advanced to face Miami on Friday night in a win-or-go-home game, with a chance to make the playoffs and face No. 1 Milwaukee in Round 1 of the East playoffs starting Sunday.

Good news for the Heat: Diar's dad said she isn't going to Miami.

"No," DeRozan said. "She's got to go back to school."

Simmons thanks Titans owner for her trust

By TERESA M. WALKER
AP Pro Football Writer

NASHVILLE — The Tennessee Titans took plenty of heat for selecting defensive tackle Jeffery Simmons at No. 19 overall in the 2019 NFL draft.

Not over the left ACL he tore that February. It was a 3-year-old arrest and video showing Simmons punching a woman that made it so surprising the lineman was selected by a team controlled by one of the NFL's few female owners.

Simmons, who signed a four-year contract extension on Wednesday, said he texted Titans controlling owner Amy Adams Strunk to thank her for trusting him. She answered back that he promised he would never let her down and he hasn't.

"That right there, it hit something inside because, you know, to have a female owner, a lady owner, in the NFL to trust in you so much from kind of the adversity I went throughout my journey to get here, it means so much to me," Simmons said.

The now two-time Pro Bowler said he appreciates "Miss Amy" so much after both Strunk and her new general manager, Ran Carthon, who was hired in January, made clear he wasn't going anywhere anytime soon.

"To the Titans' organization we have a lot of work to do," Simmons said. "We just getting started."

Simmons and the Titans agreed on April 7 to the extension reportedly worth up to $94 million, with $66 million guaranteed, including a $24 million signing bonus. The Titans announced the extension Tuesday and gave Simmons and his family the chance to celebrate a day later after the signing.

The deal includes a fifth-year option and keeps Simmons under contract through 2027 at an annual average of $23.5 million per year. That trails only the $31.6 million per year averaged by three-time AP NFL Defensive Player of the Year Aaron Donald of the Los Angeles Rams among defensive tackles.

Simmons paused and had tears streaming down his face at one point Wednesday. He said he now has generational wealth after being raised by a single mother with four siblings, moving from apartment to apartment, house to house, sharing a bed with a brother in Mississippi.

"That's why I do it ... man every day I wake up," Simmons said.

With this deal done before the draft that starts April 27, the Titans avoided last year's drama when they couldn't reach a new contract with Pro Bowl wide receiver A.J. Brown, who was traded during the first round to Philadelphia for the 18th pick overall.

They already had picked up Simmons' fifth-year option for 2023.

Simmons has 21 career sacks, second on the Titans behind outside linebacker Harold Landry III, who has 26 1/2. Simmons has 196 tackles, 19 passes defended, two forced fumbles and three recovered fumbles. He has started 54 of 56 games after missing the first six games as a rookie.

He led the NFL's stingiest run defense in 2022, allowing only 76.9 yards rushing per game, and was named to a second straight Pro Bowl after posting 7 1/2 sacks. Only Simmons and J.J. Watt of Arizona had at least seven sacks and seven passes defended in 2022.

Carthon said talks on this extension started right after the Senior Bowl.

"There's a model for what you want a player to be and what you want your organization to look like, and I think Jeff is one of those models for us," Carthon said. "So this was something that was a priority to get done."

Coach Mike Vrabel recalled how Simmons truthfully answered all the questions they threw at him during a visit to Mississippi State.

"You've earned this," Vrabel said. "We're going to continue to hold you to a high standard. That'll be the fun part, but certainly embody everything we believe in here as a team captain and a leader in your performance on the field."

NFL prospect Michael Jefferson involved in fatal crash

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — NFL prospect and former Louisiana wide receiver Michael Jefferson was involved in a fatal car accident in Mobile County.

Jefferson's agent, Jon Perzley, told ESPN that the player suffered injuries in the accident Sunday evening that required multiple operations. Perzley did not immediately respond to an email sent by The Associated Press on Wednesday.

Charles A. Dunn, 55, was pronounced dead at the scene after his car collided head-on with a 2014 Dodge Charger driven by Jefferson, a 23-year-old from Mobile. Another vehicle then struck Dunn's car. The accident occurred at about 7:55 p.m. on Sunday.

Jefferson played the last two seasons at Louisiana after transferring from Alabama State. He finished with his best season, catching 51 passes for 810 yards and seven touchdowns.

He's projected as a potential late-round pick in the draft starting April 27.

The Alabama Law Enforcement Agency's Highway Patrol Division is investigating the accident.

Spring turkey season set to open

NASHVILLE — Tennessee's 2023 statewide spring turkey season is set to open Saturday, April 15. The statewide opening date is two weeks later than in previous years. The Young Sportsman Hunt was April 8-9.

Hunters are also reminded that the bag limit has been reduced from three birds to two birds, and only one bird can be a juvenile or jake. The changes were made by the Commission to benefit the state's wild turkey population. After hearing growing reports of decreasing turkey populations, the Tennessee Fish and Wildlife Commission voted to delay the statewide turkey season to improve reproduction and nesting success.

New turkey regulations will be in effect on select Wildlife Management Areas (WMAs) and hunters are reminded to check each WMA they hunt in the 2022-23 Tennessee Hunting and Trapping Guide. The practice of fanning or reaping turkeys is now prohibited on all WMAs statewide due to safety concerns.

"This spring season is shaping up to be a good one," said Roger Shields, Wild Turkey Program Coordinator for the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency. "We had very good production across the state in 2021, so now we are seeing a lot of 2-year-old birds coming into maturity. If we have decent weather during the early part of the delayed season, we should have excellent hunting."

This will be the fourth spring turkey season to "Tag Before You Drag" where hunters tag their big game animal in the field prior to moving. Hunters can use the TWRA on the Go app to simply E-tag and report their harvest in the field in one easy step, with or without cell phone service, prior to moving.

Hunters not using a phone can attach one of the temporary transportation tags printed at the bottom of your license. Hunters using temporary tags have until midnight on the same day of the harvest (or before leaving the state) to check in a harvest online at GoOutdoorsTennessee.com or in person at one of several manned check stations. Temporary transportation tags can also be obtained by logging in at GoOutdoorsTennessee.com.

A combination hunting and fishing license, plus a supplemental big game license, or a sportsman license is required. To purchase a license online, visit GoOutdoorsTennessee.com.

More information on the 2023 spring turkey season can be found in the 2022-23 Tennessee Hunting & Trapping Guide. The guide is online at www.tnwildlife.org and available at TWRA offices and license agents.

Hunting hours are 30 minutes prior to legal sunrise until legal sunset. Legal hunting equipment includes shotguns using ammunition loaded with No. 4 shot or smaller, longbows, recurve bows, compound bows, and crossbows.

Firearms and archery equipment may have sighting devices, except those devices utilizing an artificial light capable of locating wildlife.

Tyger Campbell declares for NBA draft

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA guard Tyger Campbell has declared for the NBA draft, joining teammates Jaime Jaquez Jr. and Jaylen Clark who already made the move.

Campbell announced his decision Wednesday night on Instagram.

"I take a lot of pride in the success we have had, and that's the result of a lot of hard work and commitment," he wrote. "I'm graduating from UCLA and looking forward to the next step in my basketball career. With aspirations to play professionally, I am declaring for the NBA Draft."

Campbell was a mainstay in Westwood for the past four seasons after missing his freshman year with a knee injury.

The senior from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, averaged 13.4 points, 5.0 assists and 2.6 rebounds while playing all 37 games this past season. Campbell led the Pac-12 in assist-turnover ratio (3.2) and also finished third in the nation in that category. He also led the league in free-throw percentage at 85.6.

He finished second on the school's all-time assists list with 655 and 10th in games played at 133.

Campbell earned first-team All-Pac-12 honors for three years and was an honorable mention this past season.

He helped the Bruins reach the Final Four in 2021 and the Sweet 16 in 2022 and this year.

"This was an emotional last run for the two of us, as we both worked so hard together to make UCLA elite again," coach Mick Cronin said in a statement. "We know that Tyger has a long future in pro basketball, and I hope that I'm coaching long enough to hire him on my staff someday, as well."

Campbell and teammate David Singleton, who is out of eligibility, are set to compete in the Portsmouth Invitational this week, a pre-draft showcase in Virginia.

Jaquez, a senior, is headed to the draft after deciding to forgo an extra year of eligibility available because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Clark, a junior, has said he will enter the draft. However, he did not indicate whether he would hire an agent ahead of the June 22 draft or retain his remaining eligibility.

NFL adopts QB specific helmets

By ROB MAADDI
AP Pro Football Writer

The first quarterback-specific helmet designed to help reduce concussions has been approved for use by the NFL and NFLPA, the AP has learned.

The helmet, manufactured by Vicis, reduces severity of helmet-to-ground impacts, which league data says account for approximately half of quarterback concussions, including the one suffered by Miami's Tua Tagovailoa last season when his head slammed violently against the turf during a Thursday night game against Cincinnati.

"We've now analyzed with our engineers and with the Players Association more than a 1,000 concussions on field, we have a pretty good database of how these injuries occur," NFL executive Jeff Miller told the AP about the helmet-to-ground impacts. "This helmet performs better in laboratory testing than any helmets we have ever seen for those sorts of impacts."

The helmet performed 7% better than the most popular helmet worn by quarterbacks last season, the league said in a memo sent to team executives on Thursday.

Jason Neubauer, an executive for Vicis, said the company began designing its Zero2 Matrix QB helmet in early 2022.

"The unique thing is that it has a deformal outer shell, which means when you take an impact in any location on that helmet, it will deform or basically dent in that location to absorb the impact," Neubauer said. "What that means for us, as designers or engineers, as we're looking to optimize it for different types of impacts, we're able to change unique locations to try to optimize the impact mitigation in any one area."

It's unknown how many quarterbacks will switch to the new QB-specific helmet. The league and the players' union share information from the helmet studies with teams so players make informed decisions on helmet choice. The only other position-specific helmet already approved is the Vicis Zero2-R Trench for offensive and defensive linemen.

The memo sent to teams also includes the results of the 2023 helmet laboratory testing study. Miller told the AP seven helmets the league highly recommended in 2020 have now been downgraded to prohibited as a result of new testing.

"That's a great sign," Miller said. "Hopefully we can continue to stimulate that either with position-specific helmets designed for each position group or for a general all-purpose helmet to be able to say to players: 'Work with us, be willing to change helmets because better and better products are coming online every year.'"

Rattler's return, new OC bring hope to Gamecocks offense

By PETE IACOBELLI
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBIA, S.C. — South Carolina quarterback Spencer Rattler needed answers before deciding his football future. He got all the right ones from his teammates and new offensive coordinator Dowell Loggains that led to Rattler sticking around for another season.

Rattler's path seemed clear when he transferred from Oklahoma to the Gamecocks after the 2021 season. The strong-armed passer who led the Sooners to a Big 12 championship would polish things up before setting off for the NFL.

Turns out Rattler's late-season flourish with top-10 victories over Tennessee and Clemson left him wanting to achieve even more in college.

"I felt like we left some things on the table," said Rattler, who will conclude what's expected to be his final spring college workouts Saturday night at the annual Garnet-and-Black game.

Not that Rattler didn't need a few facts before making his return official. Marcus Satterfield, the attack's coordinator the past two years, headed to Nebraska for a similar position. Receiver Antwane "Juice" Wells Jr., who led the team with 68 catches for 928 yards and six touchdown grabs, was strongly considering going pro.

But the Gamecocks hired Arkansas assistant and longtime NFL offensive coordinator Loggains to lead the offense and Wells, like Rattler, wanted to play another year in college.

"We could've both taken that next step to the next level and been OK," Rattler said this spring. "I think coming back was the right decision."

Every South Carolina supporter would agree, particularly with how the team closed the regular season. The Gamecocks were a so-so 6-4 and coming off a demoralizing 38-6 loss at Florida in mid-November where the offense managed just 237 yards of offense and 11 first downs.

The next two weeks, though, the Gamecocks ended the College Football Playoff chances of fifth-ranked Tennessee and No. 8 Clemson.

Rattler combined for 798 yards and eight touchdowns in the two victories, and Wells had 20 receptions for 301 yards, including a 72-yard scoring catch at Clemson in a 31-30 win that helped the Gamecocks end their seven-game losing streak in the rivalry.

"It was a tough decision," Wells said about going pro. "Trying to figure what my quarterback was going to do, who's going to be the OC, what type of offense we're going to run. But everything came together and I'm happy to be here."

So is Loggains, who spent the past two seasons as Arkansas' tight ends coach. Before that, he was offensive coordinator for four NFL teams. Retaining Rattler and Wells were among Loggains' biggest priorities and he loves what he's seen so far this spring.

Loggains has studied what Rattler did well at South Carolina and at Oklahoma, and he brings things up to Rattler that the quarterback is eager to work into the offense.

Loggains has offensive questions to figure out, particularly at running back, where the top two rushers from last year in MarShawn Lloyd (573 yards, nine touchdowns) and Jaheim Bell (263 yards, three TDs) both transferred. Lloyd went to Southern Cal and Bell to Florida State.

What doesn't seem to be a question, at least for coach Shane Beamer, is Rattler's poise as a leader now compared with a year ago.

"Last year he came in at this time, and he wasn't really trying to impose his will and force his leadership on you. He was trying to earn their respect and earn a role and go from there," Beamer said. "Now everybody knows what he can do and what he's done here at (South) Carolina, and it's very clearly his team. It's very clearly his offense."

Minneapolis to pay $8.9M over Chauvin's actions before Floyd

By JIM SALTER Associated Press
The city of Minneapolis agreed Thursday to pay nearly $9 million to settle lawsuits filed by two people who said former police officer Derek Chauvin pressed his knee into their necks years before he used the same move to kill George Floyd.

John Pope Jr. will receive $7.5 million and Zoya Code will receive $1.375 million. The settlements were announced during a meeting of the Minneapolis City Council. Both lawsuits stemmed from arrests in 2017 — three years before Chauvin killed Floyd during an arrest captured on video that sparked protests worldwide, prompted a national reckoning on racial injustice and compelled a Minneapolis Police Department overhaul. The lawsuits stated that if the city had acted sooner to discipline Chauvin, "history could have been stopped from repeating itself with George Floyd." Bob Bennett, the attorney for Pope and Code, noted in a statement that other officers failed to intervene or report Chauvin, and police leaders allowed Chauvin to "field train and indoctrinate dozens of young MPD officers to his ways without fear of discipline or negative sanction and to continue his predatory ways for years." Council member Elliott Payne said what happened to Code and Pope were reminders of what happened to Floyd and rekindled those emotions. "And it's actually not a Derek Chauvin problem. It's an institution problem," Payne said. He hoped the settlements "bring some closure to this era and is a stark reminder of the work we have lying ahead." Code, who has a history of homelessness and mental health problems, was arrested in June 2017 after she allegedly tried to strangle her mother with an extension cord. Pope was 14 in September 2017 when, according to his lawsuit, Chauvin subjected him to excessive force while responding to a domestic assault report. Both lawsuits named Chauvin and several other officers. The lawsuits alleged police misconduct, excessive force, and racism — Pope and Code are Black; Chauvin is white. They also said the city knew that Chauvin had a record of misconduct but didn't stop him. Criminal charges in both cases were eventually dropped. The lawsuits said body camera recordings showed Chauvin used many of the same tactics on Pope and Code that he used on Floyd. Chauvin was sentenced to 22 1/2 years in prison on a state murder charge in 2021 for killing Floyd by pressing his knee to Floyd's neck for 9 1/2 minutes as he pleaded that he couldn't breathe. The city also paid $27 million to Floyd's family.

Code's lawsuit said she was in handcuffs when Chauvin slammed her head to the ground and pinned his knee on the back of her neck for 4 minutes and 41 seconds. A second officer didn't intervene and a responding police sergeant approved the force, the lawsuit stated. Pope's lawsuit said his mother was drunk when she called police because she was upset that he and his 16-year-old sister left their cellphone chargers plugged in, leading to a physical confrontation. It alleged Chauvin struck Pope in the head with a large metal flashlight at least four times. It says he then put Pope in a chokehold before pinning him to the floor and putting his knee on Pope's neck. "Chauvin would proceed to hold John in this prone position for more than fifteen minutes, all while John was completely subdued and not resisting," the complaint alleged. "Over those minutes, John repeatedly cried out that he could not breathe." The complaint alleged that at least eight other officers did nothing to intervene. It said Chauvin did not mention in his report that he had hit Pope with his flashlight, nor did he mention pinning Pope for so long. Chauvin's sergeant reviewed and approved his report and use of force "despite having firsthand knowledge that the report was false and misleading," the lawsuit alleged. Chauvin admitted many of Pope's allegations when he pleaded guilty in December 2021 to federal charges for violating the civil rights of both Floyd and Pope. He was sentenced in July to 21 years on those charges. Chauvin is serving his sentences in a federal prison in Arizona. — For more of AP's coverage on the killing of George Floyd and the aftermath: // apnews.com/hub/death-of-george-floyd

As Earth warms, more 'flash droughts' suck soil, plants dry

By SETH BORENSTEIN AP Science Writer
Climate change is making droughts faster and more furious, especially a specific fast-developing heat-driven kind that catch farmers by surprise, a new study found.

The study in Thursday's journal Science found droughts in general are being triggered faster. But it also showed that a special and particularly nasty sudden kind — called "flash droughts" by experts — is casting an ever bigger crop-killing footprint. It comes only in the growing season — mostly summer, but also spring and fall — and is insidious because it's caused not just by the lack of rain or snow that's behind a typical slow-onset drought, hydrologists and meteorologists said. What happens is the air gets so hot and so dry that it sucks water right out of plants and soil. "It's the increasing thirstiness of the atmosphere," said UCLA and National Center for Atmospheric Research climate scientist Daniel Swain, who wasn't part of the study. Swain called the issue "very relevant in a warming climate." The term flash drought was coined around 2000 but it really took off in 2012, when a $30 billion sudden drought struck the central United States, one of the worst droughts since the infamous Dust Bowl devastated the Plains in the 1930s, according to the study. "Because it occurs very, very fast people started to focus on this new phenomenon," said study lead author Xing Yuan, dean of the School of Hydrology and Water Resources at Nanjing University of Information Science and Technology in China. "For the 2012 drought, actually the drought just developed in a very severe condition just within a month." Most of China's Yangtze River basin last summer was struck by a flash drought that developed within only a month due to high temperatures, which also triggered wildfires, Yuan said. Parts of the river dried up and there was an energy shortage in southern China because hydropower wouldn't work, he said. "It developed very fast so you don't have enough time to prepare for this drought," Yuan said. Another sudden drought happened in the U.S. Southeast in 2016 and was a factor in devastating wildfires in Gatlinburg, Tennessee, said Jason Otkin, a study co-author and an atmospheric scientist at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. The current drought in the Oklahoma-Texas panhandle and Kansas started two years ago as a rapid onset drought, said Joel Lisonbee, a climatologist at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's National Integrated Drought Information System in Colorado. He wasn't part of the study but praised it, saying "essentially a warmer world allows for faster onset of drought." Yuan, Otkin and their research team looked back at droughts, how fast they occurred and what kind they were, across the globe since 1951 and found flash droughts are happening more often in nearly three-quarters of the climate regions of the world. They also found droughts of all kinds happening faster. Although they couldn't quantify how much faster because of the variability in places and times, Yuan said it would be fair to say droughts are happening weeks earlier than they once did. Yuan said some of the bigger increases in sudden droughts have been in Europe and Australia. Outside experts pointed to the Amazon as prone to them. "We have to pay attention to this phenomenon because it's increasing," Yuan said. Yuan's team also used computer simulations — both with worst-case warming and more moderate warming — and projected that the proportion of flash droughts will increase in a warmer world and droughts will continue to keep happening faster. By definition, flash droughts — because they result from low soil moisture levels — are especially bad for agriculture, experts said. The trouble is there has been an old way of thinking that "we have months or years before we need to worry about drought," said Mark Svoboda, director of the National Drought Mitigation Center at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. That's the reason why Svoboda, who wasn't part of this study, said he pioneered the term "flash drought" and wanted to "dispel the notion that droughts only manifest themselves over long period of time." Svoboda's agency recommends that farmers, ranchers, municipal water suppliers and hydropower plants come up with plans for droughts. For example, farmers and ranchers should know how susceptible they are to drought and have alternative plans for plantings or foraging. NOAA's Lisonbee said in an email that the problem is "in a slowly evolving drought if a farmer thinks the season ahead will be dry, they may consider a more drought-tolerant crop that season, but when a flash drought occurs it is likely the crops are already in the ground and there is little that can be done."

In 'Florida Man,' Edgar Ramirez ' has fun with' popular meme

By ALICIA RANCLIO Associated Press
Edgar Ramirez says his new series "Florida Man," now on Netflix, may share a name with the popular meme of the same name, but it is not making fun of the state or its residents. "It does not make fun of that, it has fun with it, which is completely different," said Ramirez in an interview. In "Florida Man" — the TV show — Ramirez plays Mike Valentine, an ex-cop in Philadelphia who falls from grace because of a gambling addiction. He also still owes a big debt to a local mob boss (Emory Cohen) so he often has to do his dirty work. On his orders, Ramirez's character begrudgingly returns to his home state of Florida to track down his boss' runaway girlfriend (Abbey Lee). What he intends to be a quick trip turns into a wild treasure hunt that opens up a Pandora's box about his past. "It is funny, but it's dark. It's offbeat, it's strange, it's weird," Ramirez said. "The absurdity of the situations is where the comedy lies." He says Valentine is one of those people who believes he innocently finds himself in absurd situations — but in reality, he courts it.

"He's very dramatic. I think that he foolishly thinks the way to get out of chaos is by creating more chaos. He believes that he can outrun the ghosts of his past," he said. Despite its title, "Florida Man" is filmed in North Carolina. To get a feel for Florida, Ramirez spoke to the show's creator, Donald Todd, who is from there. He also traveled to the state. "I went to the places that inspired the story ... to look at the characters, the atmosphere in the air and the mood that inspired the show," he said. Before he ever went into acting, Ramirez worked in journalism in his home country of Venezuela and says that desire to learn about people and things is still within him, and serves him today. "Maybe it has to do with my journalistic background, you know? I'm interested in the human experience. I'm a very curious person," he said. "That curiosity is the driving force of everything that I do, not only as an actor, but in other interests that I have." The actor — whose past roles include "Zero Dark Thirty," "Carlos" and "The Assassination of Gianni Versace: American Crime Story," says the fun of "Florida Man" set him up mentally to go into his next job, now filming: season two of Peacock's anthology series "Dr. Death." It's based on the podcast of the same name. Ramirez will play the con man masked as a world-renowned surgeon whom a TV producer falls for, based on a true story. He says that role is "one of the darkest" he's ever had. "We see it a lot, especially when women are conned. 'How could she fall for that? Oh, my gosh. She's so naive' and all of that. It's almost like they're being blamed," he said. "The reality is they're people who dedicate their entire life to con other people, so it's not the victim's fault."
