City council gets development update

By MARK MCGEE
mmcgee@t-g.com

The overall development of Shelbyville and Bedford County is a win-win situation for everybody.

Members of the Shelbyville City Council heard about the work of the Shelbyville-Bedford Partnership from Gary Fayard, a member of the board of directors. The partnership is asking for $100,000 to support their continuing efforts.

“The city and county have been funding $100,000 a year for the past three years and the county has been matching it,” Fayard said. “Our budget is right about $400,000 a year.

“In a true public-private partnership it is for the city, and the county, to fund half of the budget. We would raise the other $200,000 privately.”

Fayard outlined to the council members the benefits the city receives from its investment.

“There is direct capital improvement for the city and county in new industry and grants of $124 million for the past three years,” Fayard said. “Granted, $117 million of that is Duksan (Electera America), the battery plant.

“We applied and got a $6 million grant from the state which allows the city to upgrade the pumping station. Infrastructure is a major obstacle. We also received a $1 million site development grant for the industrial park. We have been doing really well in getting investment into the city and county.”

Fayard informed the council

the partnership is talking with a number of companies.

“Some of that is industrial and some of it is more retail,” Fayard said. “Something that is telling is, we have had 18 meetings in the last six months with developers.

“Shelbyville is on the map. We are going to grow one way or the other, but do we grow the way we want to grow or not?”

Fayard added that attracting new industries and businesses is part of the job of the partnership, but at the same time, it is important for Shelbyville and Bedford County to retain what is already here.

“We have gone out and met with every major employer in the county,” Fayard said. “We talked to them about what their needs are.”

One of the most important needs, especially if the employer is seeking workers right out of high school, is to be certain those students have the correct skills. Fayard points to the cooperation from the Bedford County Schools leaders and the Tennessee College of Applied Technology (TCAT).

“We have been able to get employers together with TCAT and the county school system to develop or change programs to exactly what our local employers need,” Fayard said. “I think that has been great.

“We have run workshops on job readiness and an eighth-grade career fair. We had a job fair at Central High School. We have had workshops with seniors in

Belden added to Shelter Insurance team

By ZOË WATKINS

Bonne Belden is the newest face of Maleah Claxton’s Shelter Insurance Branch. She said she’s looking forward to helping the business grow and working alongside Claxton and the office assistant Susie Emery.

Some may already be familiar with Belden, who has lived in Bedford for 10 years after moving from Texas. Before joining Claxton’s team, Belden worked at Shelbyville Central High School as a Spanish teacher for six years.

According to Claxton, her talent with language was one of the main reasons why she was added to the team. That, and her love of working with people.

“I’m just really excited to be here with Maleah and Susie, to get to know the insurance industry, and to get to know more people in Bedford County,” Belden said. “I’ve loved teaching. I’m going to miss the students. But I like that I can still use my Spanish skills.”

“Teachers naturally like to work with people,” she said. Belden also works as a real estate agent with Heritage Realty Group.

“She’s going to be the growth portion of it,” said Claxton.

Together, the team makes a dynamic trio that, despite differing personalities, works well together, Claxton explained. And all three can agree: they like helping people.

Belden will officially start June 1 — so no summer break for her, Belden jokes.

Insurance office has been in Shelbyville for nearly 60 years — the first Shelter Insurance in Shelbyville.

They will also be switching to a new office soon. Instead of being at 1301 North Main, Claxton’s Shelter Insurance Office will be located at 1302 North Main (under The Skin Project).

For the love of cars and community

From left, Car Club President Walt Bagar, Chase Clanton, secretary Phyllis Clanton, and board chairman Jerry Clanton. Behind them is the first commercial truck Jerry ever drove, a 1956 Ford F800.

The Celebration City Region Car Club has been an integral part of bringing both car enthusiasts and visitors alike to Shelbyville.

They host “The Cruise-In on the Square,” each fourth Friday from April through October. The goal of the event, which started eight years ago, is to bring the community together, according to club secretary Phyllis Clanton.

After hosting the big 2012 AACA (Antique Automobile Club of America) national show — which had over 1,000 registered vehicles covering The Celebration horse show grounds and brought a “different kind of horsepower” — the car club wanted a more “no pressure, come and go as you’d like” event to bring to the community.

“Come and mingle; you’ll probably see your neighbor,” said Phyllis and Jerry Clanton’s son, Chase, whom you can usually find singing and playing guitar as the cruise-in entertainment (Hunter Girl, before claiming fame, was even one of the guest performers with Chase at the cruise-in).

And for Jerry, chairman of the board, just getting to see people get together around the town square is a major inspiration for continuing the event. “It’s actually become a community event,” he said.

“I think it’s really cool how it’s growing,” added club president Walt Bagar. The next cruise-in is set for May 26 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on the Shelbyville Historic Square. The event is free and will feature live music.

high school on interviewing skills. We are making sure students are prepared when they get out of school especially if they are going straight to work."

Fayard admitted the partnership is not always successful. He cites the loss of National Pen as an example.

"We helped coordinate all of the available resources - city, county, and state - and contacted all of our local companies," Fayard said. "We have actually been able to place 81 percent of the dislocated workers from National Pen. That was really important." Fayard emphasized the partnership has a three-prong attack.

"We want to bring new economic growth, make sure we keep what we've got, and make sure our school system and TCAT are working together to make sure we are getting students prepared."

Also making a grant proposal was Pam Birtcil, executive director of Bedford Builds Habitat for Humanity. She has requested $10,000 to help with the purchase of land in order to build another home. She emphasized the increased price of real estate in the county.

The regular meeting of the Shelbyville City Council is Thursday night, May 11, at 6 at the Shelbyville Recreation Center.

Cars

The car club also hosts a car show fundraiser, which will be taking place on May 13 at The Celebration horse show ground pavilion.

This annual event is structured on three ideas, according to Phyllis: the love of the car hobby, bringing the community together, and giving back to the community.

The Celebration City Car Club started around 1980, with car enthusiasts like Garland King and Ronny Riddle. They only showed antique cars at the time.

The Clantons by then were active members in the AACA. Jerry said his love for cars comes from the adage of the dream for that one car we all wish we'd had in high school. For Jerry, it was a 1969 Z28 Camaro.

And that's exactly what he has today. Restoring it and showing it was what got them into AACA. With the AACA the objective is to get as close to the original as possible - like it was fresh off the factory line from 1969.

Though, Jerry says he kind of got into cars by "accident," competitive car racing, which he did along with his brother Billy for 20 years, taught them how to fix and rebuild cars again and again.

For Phyllis, "I've always loved cars because my father [Claude Swing] was an auto mechanic and owned a gas station," she said. "My twin brother could change brakes faster than anybody ever saw," she added with a laugh.

With this background, the Clantons were talked into becoming a part of the club. Soon, the club started "re-generating" itself, according to Jerry, who joined as vice president of the club.

They eventually agreed to revitalize a car show, this time including all and any kinds of cars, not just antiques. That was around 2005.

Today, "We welcome all the cars from rat rods to perfect cars. The whole idea is to get people together and have fun," said Walt.

Plus, it's all for a good cause.

"The key is that we give money back to the community to deserving organizations. So, the more people that show up to the car show, the more money we can give out," he said. For example, they gave to 12 different organizations last year.

"It's hard work but it's fun," said Phyllis.

For more information call Walt at 256-606-0085 or Jerry at 931-684-9379. Registration for the car show starts at 8 a.m. on May 13 and ends by noon. The fee is $20 and $10 for a second vehicle.

Dust builds up in dryer interior

Dear Heloise: My Whirlpool dryer belt recently broke. Since it's old and older appliances tend to last longer than newer models, I decided to have it fixed. I did some research and discovered it's very easy to open it up and get to the guts of the dryer. Unbelievably, there was a lot of lint and dust built up inside! Prior to repair, I was able to vacuum the entire interior.

Hints from Heloise

she can use the pillowcase to store the wreaths.

The only wreath that would not fit a pillowcase is the very large Christmas wreath we have. We use a 30-gallon trash bag for that.

Best regards and smiles. -- Tim Davis, Kettering, Ohio

LAUNDRY TIP

Dear Heloise: In response to the woman who wrote that laundry detergent bottles are heavy, they now make laundry detergent sheets that I have been using, and they are obviously very light and dissolvable. There are several brands. The bigger plus is that using the laundry sheets eliminates the amount of laundry bottles in our landfills. -- Mary Emminger, Laguna Woods, California

DOWN VESTS

Dear Heloise: I have several down vests, and I never travel without one. I often use my down vest in place of a hotel pillow. I know it's clean because I washed it. I can slip it on if the weather turns chilly and wrap breakable items in it for plane travel. One time, I used it to wrap up an abandoned puppy who was freezing on the side of the highway.

P.S. We kept the puppy, and she just turned 7 years old.

-- John G., Blaine, Minnesota

Send a money-saving or timesaving hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001, or you can fax it to 1-210-HELOISE or email it to Heloise@Heloise.com. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

I would encourage everyone to look into their dryers and see if they need vacuuming. -- Bev, Spokane, Washington

SAVING ON LOTION

Dear Heloise: The tube my hand lotion comes in is about 7 inches long, so when it gets near the end, it's impossible to squeeze the lotion from the tube. So, I cut it approximately three inches from the top, so I end up having two parts of the tube. There's an abundance of lotion inside that I'd previously been unable to reach; however, when the tube's been cut in half, I'm able to get all of it out.

When I'm through using it, I then just put one half back on top of the other half. That will preserve the leftover lotion and keep it nice and usable. I estimate there are about 20 applications of lotion left inside the tube that I'm then able to use. -- Barbara K. Hoch, San Antonio

REUSING PILLOWCASES

Dear Heloise: When I read your suggestions recently about reusing pillowcases, another use close to home came to mind. My wife has wreaths for every season/holiday period. She hangs the wreaths on the wall on the front porch. I am going to suggest to her that if she decides a pillowcase is no longer suitable for one's head,

AG NOTES

By John Teague
 UT/TSU Extension

plant disperses its seeds.

(931) 762-5506.

DEADLINE

The Tennessee Ag Enhancement Program deadline for reimbursement for genetic purchases for those approved for 2023 is approaching. For eligible bull purchases or leases, semen purchases, sheep and goat purchases, and the bred heifer purchases, the deadline for this project is June 1.

Any and all paper work and additional requirements associated with these projects is due in to the Tennessee Department of Agriculture by that date. That's in just a little over three weeks.

But then, who's counting?

TIMBER

If you are interested in selling some timber, this workshop might be of interest to you. The University of Tennessee Extension, South Central Extension Team will host a Timber Sale Workshop on Thursday, June 29, 2023.

The workshop will begin at 5 pm and will take place at David Crockett State Park, Pavilion 1, 1400 W Gaines St, Lawrenceburg, TN 38464. Topics will include Steps in Marketing Timber, and how to Avoid Diameter Limit Cutting (DLC) followed by a Timber Walk & Talk with local Tennessee Division of Forestry, Area Forester.

The Timber Sale Workshop is open to anyone at no cost, though a meal sponsored by Tennessee Forestry Association will be provided so please register by calling the Lawrence County Extension Office 931-762-5506 to ensure you get a plate. For more details or if you have questions contact, Laine McGee at

TEMPERATURE

We've started seeing some movement in cutting hay, especially some of the wheat and forage mixtures. I've heard of some really high moisture contents and some internal temps in bales getting pretty high. These bales need monitoring.

Pay attention!

ANTHRACNOSE

I saw a maple tree, thinking that the curled leaves as described was chemical burn from some weed control drift. It turns out this was not the case. There were several distinctly curled leaves, but these leaves had big black diseased spots and this continued up the interior of the tree.

I passed this on to a friend of mine with considerable experience in horticulture and plant science. He confirmed that this was maple anthracnose, and while it sounds very serious, he indicated that it was not to be concerned about. This is a fungal issue, and while there may be some leaf drop, they should re-leaf and the tree will be fine.

Sometimes some things look worse than they really are, and this is apparently one of those things.

POISON HEMLOCK

This plant is growing like a bad weed, and it literally is. This one is dangerous, not only to livestock but to humans who come into contact with the sap.

Hit it with 2,4-D or Duracor to get control off it before it gets too big. Glyphosate can be use as a spot spray, but it will kill everything else unless you apply to each plant.

Forest Legacy Program aids conservation efforts

NASHVILLE — Forest landowners can ensure conservation benefits for generations to come with funding through the Forest Legacy Program (FLP). Proposals to apply for funding may be submitted until June 9 at 4:30 p.m.

"One of the greatest threats to Tennessee's forests is conversion to another use, like residential or commercial development," State Forester David Arnold said. "Grants are available to landowners who want to keep their forests as forests, encouraging sustainable forest management and supporting strong forest products markets. FLP provides options for land to remain in private ownership while ensuring that its conservation values and support for local rural economies continue."

the U.S. Forest Service in partnership with the Tennessee Department of Agriculture's Division of Forestry to protect privately-owned forest lands from conversion to non-forest uses through conservation easements or land purchases. Federal grant funds pay for conservation easements that restrict development and allow landowners to continue to own and manage their land.

Keeping Tennessee land in traditional forest uses contributes to improved water quality, fish and wildlife habitat, timber, fuel wood, other forest products, and recreation opportunities. The Tennessee Forest Legacy Program currently conserves 53,315 acres valued at $59 million across Tennessee.

Find the request for proposal package and more information about Tennessee's FLP at www.tn.gov/agriculture/forests/protection/legacy.html.

For questions about FLP, contact Assistant State Forester Heather Slayton at 615-837-5432 or heather.slayton@tn.gov.

May is Mental Health Awareness Month

By SARAH ALLEN, PA-C

Sarah Allen is a physician assistant at Vanderbilt Integrated Primary Care, Madison Street in Shelbyville, Tennessee.

SARAH ALLEN, PA-C

Mental health is increasingly an important issue impacting many Americans across the nation — and Tennessee is no exception. In fact, Tennessee ranks near the bottom in the country for mental health services.

According to recent reports, there's one mental health provider for every 590 people in Tennessee. That is lower than the national average of 1 provider per 350 people.

Mental health includes our emotional, psychological and social well-being. It affects how we think, feel and act. It also influences how we handle stress, relate to our friends and family, as well as the quality of our health-related choices.

Good mental health is important at every stage of life. Here are a few tips for improving your mental well-being.

Give yourself some technology-free time. Social comparison, feelings of missing out and cyberbullying all stem from the content we see online. Increased use of social media and other online channels are linked to increased depression and anxiety. Too much technology also affects our bodies, which then decreases our mental wellness. High screen use can disrupt sleep, especially if it's before bed, and decreases physical activity.

Begin paying attention to how you feel during and after long periods of screen use. If you find yourself with higher anxiety or lower moods, try to take a break — even if it's only for an hour or two.

Incorporate physical exercise into your lifestyle. Exercise is an extremely effective way to increase your mental well-being. It relieves tension and stress, boosts physical and mental energy and releases chemicals, such as endorphins and serotonin, that improve mood. Research shows that people who exercise regularly have better emotional well-being and lower rates of mental illness. Doing just 30 minutes of exercise three days a week can significantly improve symptoms of depression and anxiety.

Eat a healthy diet. When you stick to a diet of nutrient-rich, healthful foods, you are likely to experience fewer mood swings and improvements in depression and anxiety. Our guts and brain are more linked than many realize. Many of the processed foods we eat stimulate the dopamine centers in our brains, making them moderately to highly addictive and influence our base emotional behaviors. To boost your mental health, focus on eating plenty of fruits and vegetables along with foods rich in omega-3 fatty acids.

Find ways to relax. If there is an activity or hobby that helps you stay calm, try and find ways to incorporate it into your daily routine. Additionally, practicing mindfulness — by using techniques such as yoga, meditation or breathing exercises — have been shown to increase calmness and help people become more aware of their thoughts and feelings. With this awareness, we're better able to manage our emotions and how we respond to situations and people.

If someone is feeling paralyzed by stress and sadness, or it's disrupting their ability to live a normal life, it's essential to schedule an appointment with a mental health provider to discuss treatment options. If you or someone you know is experiencing thoughts of suicide or harming others, seek help immediately and contact the suicide hotline at 800-273-8255 or the Suicide and Crisis Lifeline at 988.

Good mental well-being doesn't mean you're always happy or unaffected by your experiences. It just makes those difficult times in life easier to navigate. This Mental Health Awareness Month, it's important to take care of yourself and prioritize your mental well-being.

First grants awarded for 'healthcare resiliency & transformation'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The Tennessee Department of Health is announcing the first round of grant awards today from its $230 million Healthcare Resiliency Program to expand Tennessee's capacity in delivering quality healthcare services.

TDH will make $121 million in funding available in the HRP's first grants awarded to 54 eligible applicants in two broad project areas — Capital Investment, to expand brick-and-mortar healthcare capacity, and Practice Transformation and Extension, to improve access to healthcare services.

"This is a generational investment to make quality healthcare available to Tennesseans for years to come," said Tennessee Gov. Bill Lee. "As we focus these grants on projects that improve access to healthcare services for our low-income, minority, and rural populations, we also ensure Tennessee continues to lead in healthcare for all."

TDH launched the HRP in November 2022 as a competitive grant program to modernize and transform healthcare in Tennessee.

HRP sought project proposals for the Capital Investment grants from among Tennessee's acute care hospitals and long-term care facilities seeking to increase capacity for adult, and pediatric, intensive care units and floor beds.

HRP made the Practice Transformation and Extension grants available for eligible projects that improve and upgrade medical practices, technology, and services, at acute care hospitals and long-term care facilities, and to include health care programs at academic institutions and primary care providers, along with entities addressing health-related issues such as housing and food insecurity.

"We thank Gov. Lee and Tennessee's General Assembly for recognizing the important work of our healthcare leaders, who have performed heroically over the last several years," said Tennessee Health Commissioner Ralph Alvarado, M.D., F.A.C.P. "Our state and local leaders are helping Tennessee be the model in the southeast U.S. for meeting the needs of citizens where they live, work, play, and worship. This is exactly how we improve the culture of health in Tennessee."

TDH continues evaluating HRP grant applicants and projects and expects a second announcement of grant awards in the coming weeks. TDH's HRP grants are funded through the American Rescue Plan, passed Congress in March 2022. Tennessee received $3.9 billion in total ARP funds, and in August 2021, the state's Financial Stimulus Accountability Group dedicated $230 million in recovery funding to TDH for healthcare modernization and transformation projects.

DISTRICT DROUGHT ENDS

McGeary walks Cascade off for 1st district title in 11 years

By WILL CARTER
Sports Writer

CHAPEL HILL — The lights were bright, rally caps were on and tensions were high.

With two outs and a runner on second base in the bottom of the seventh of a tied district championship game, the moment couldn't have been bigger when Noah McGeary stepped to the plate for the Cascade Champions.

McGeary took the first pitch for ball one.

The next pitch floated his way and he sent a hard line drive to the left-center gap to bring Chance Brown home to beat the Forrest Rockets (19-10) 8-7, and secure the District 7-AA title for the 'Champions' (13-15) first district championship since 2012.

"Noah got in the box and looked at me, and I just pointed at him and said 'be that dude,'" Cascade head coach Travis Sheffield said.

"You look at him and don't expect him to be one of our better players, but he has so much heart and passion. To see him get that game-winning hit was awesome. He tried to run from me, but I made sure I could catch him for the dogpile. I'm so proud of him and this whole team."

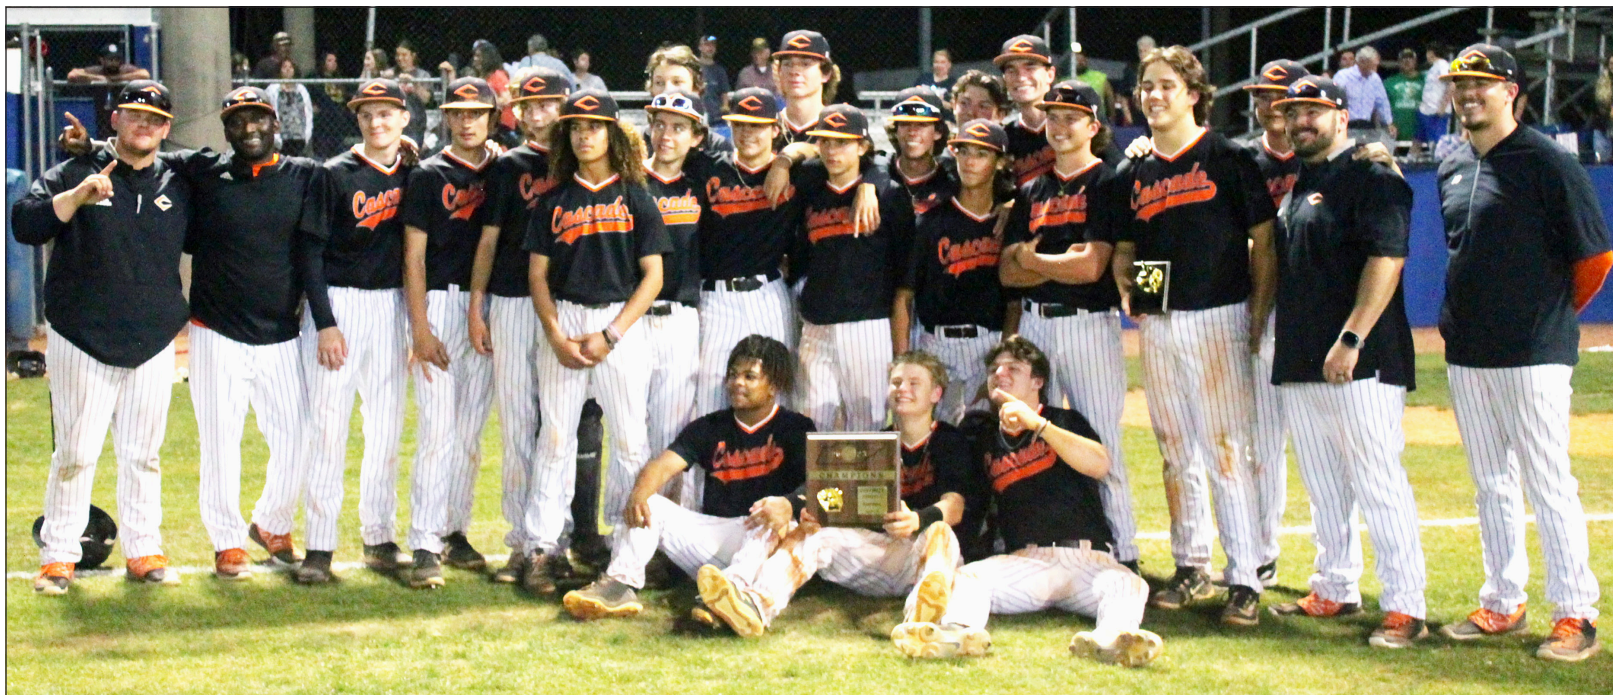

Entering the bottom of the seventh, the Champions were trailing the Rockets 7-6 with the bottom of their lineup coming to the plate.

After two quick outs, it was up to the nine-hole hitter — Logan Green — to keep their hopes alive, and on the third pitch of the at-bat, he took one for the team by taking a pitch off his back for a free base.

Brown stepped to the plate next and ripped a line drive to right field to score Green all the way from first base and tie the game at 7-7 before McGeary's walk-off single.

"Logan Green probably had the biggest at-bat of that inning. Up there with two outs, and he's the nine-hole hitter. I'm sure the whole ballpark was deflated thinking it was over," Sheffield said. "He's not the type of guy to wear a pitch, but he took one for the team in that moment. That gave Chance the opportunity to be the senior and dog that we needed with that double down the line."

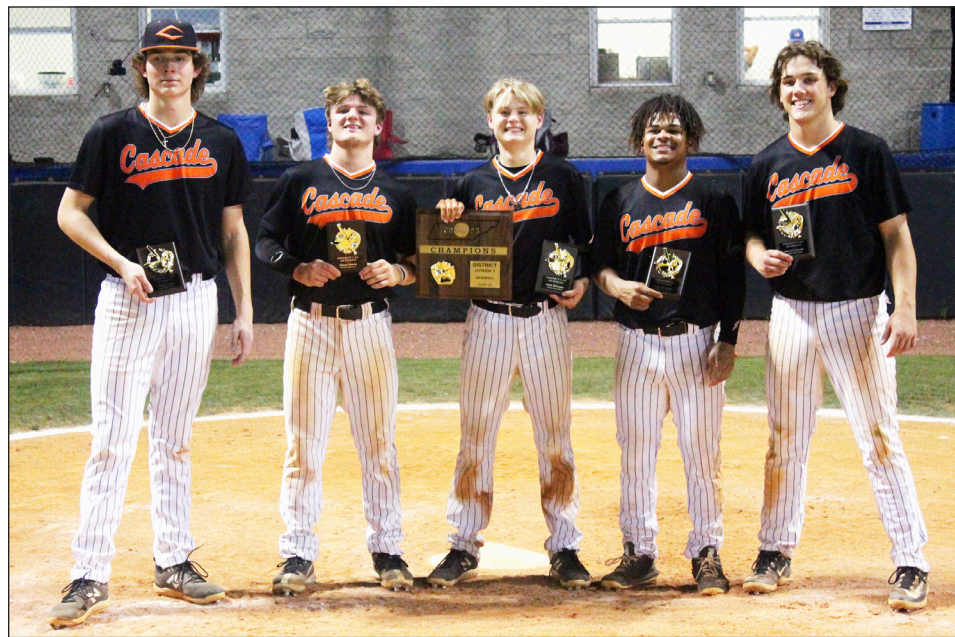

Cascade was in control

Kason Fuller and Carter Walk started off the half inning with back-to-back singles, and a walk immediately after loaded the bases for the Rockets.

Shelbyville Central had the tying run 90 feet away in the top of the seventh, but just couldn't get the needed hit to score as Coffee County held off the pesky Golden Eagle squad in a 3-2 thriller of a District 6 4-A championship.

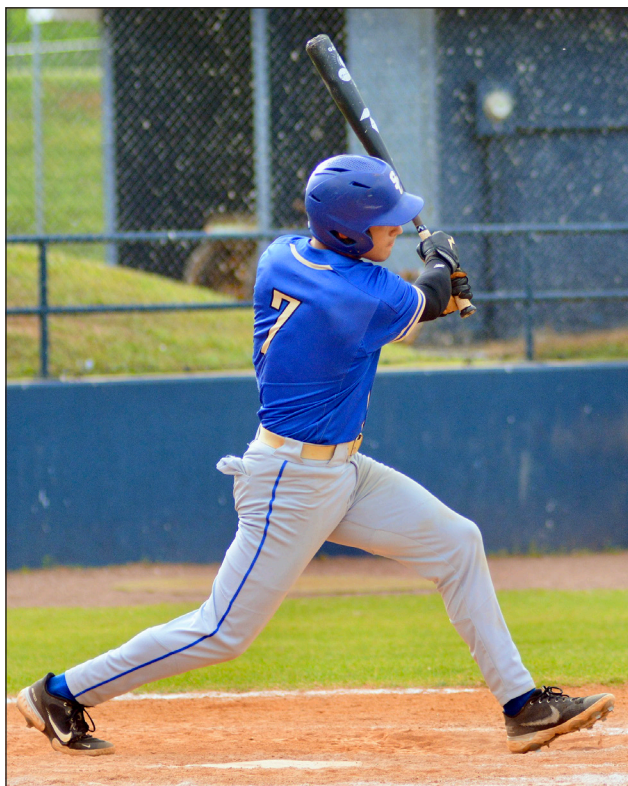

Trailing 3-0 by the sixth inning, Nick Hopper put the Eagles on the board with a sac fly to center field, which scored Nick Johnson.

Shelbyville made it a one-run game after relief pitcher Carston Williams sat the Red Raiders down in order in the bottom of the sixth.

After two quick outs in the seventh, the Eagles were the beneficiary of back-to-back hit batters and a walk to load the bases.

Johnson came through and singled on a line drive to center field, scoring William Bobo and keeping the bases juiced.

end the Eagles' threat.

Johnson went 2-for-4 with a double to lead the Eagles at the plate, while Marquis Wilson, Kyler Trice and Jaquai Beverly all singled.

While Sunday afternoon went down as a loss, Eagle coach Chase Jones was still proud of his team's effort to claw its way to a district title game.

"Disappointed in the loss, but I'm not the least bit disappointed in our kids or their effort today. I thought Saturday we probably played one of the worst games we played all year. For whatever reason we just weren't ready to play. I put that on me. Today, we struggled a little offensively, but give credit to Henderson for Coffee County for keeping our batters off balanced," he said.

Palmer Edwards got the start for the Eagles and went 4 1/3 innings, giving up three runs on three hits, while striking out two.

Williams worked the final 1 2/3 innings in relief, striking out two.

"I thought Palmer competed his tail off on the mound and Carston came in and kept us in striking distance. Now we have to reset, have a good week of practice, and get ready for the regional next Friday," Jones said.

With the district in the rear-view mirror, Shelbyville's focus now shifts to the upcoming region slate.

"We have taken great strides this year and hopefully we can keep the ride going this weekend. I fully expect our kids are going to leave it all on the field," Jones said.

Golden Eaglette Lilly Brown has had an explosive District 6 4-A tournament thus far including a grand slam and another home run Friday night against Franklin County.

Eaglettes hammer Franklin Co. in tourney

T-G STAFF REPORT

SHELBYVILLE — Lilly Brown had a five-hit, two home run and seven RBI night to lead Shelbyville Central past Franklin County on Friday night, 16-8.

The Eaglettes hammered the Rebelettes' pitching staff to the tune of 17 hits.

The Eaglettes built a 6-0 lead before Franklin County plated its first run in the top of the third.

A seven-spot in the top of the fourth allowed Franklin County to take an 8-6 lead over the Eaglettes, only for Sammie Brown to smack an RBI double and Dejah Lineberger to score Brown on a RBI single to tie the game.

From there, the Eaglettes scored eight unanswered runs to double up the visitors.

After two outs to start the bottom of the fifth, Kaydence Rippy and Lilly Brown launched back-to-back solo homers to re-take the lead.

The Eaglettes slammed the door shut with six more runs in the sixth inning, highlighted by Lilly Brown's grand slam to plate the final four runs of the game for Shelbyville.

Franklin County had its share of moments against Shelbyville, connecting for 10 hits and smacking a home run of its own, but Shelbyville just had too much firepower in its lineup.

Rippy went 3-for-4 with two RBIs, while Alyvia Smith went 1-for-5, but collected three RBIs.

From the pitcher's circle, Lineberger got the start and went 3 1/3 innings, giving up eight runs on seven hits, while striking out one.

Sammie Brown went 3 2/3 innings in relief to collect the win and gave up just three hits and striking out a pair.

Big innings push Champs over Vikes in tourney opener

BELL BUCKLE — In the opening round of the District 7-AA tournament on Thursday night, the Cascade Champions separated themselves from the Community Vikings with a five-run fourth inning, and ended the game with four more runs in the fifth inning for a 13-3 run-rule limit victory.

After Vikings (10-22) pitcher Thomas Bowling forced two quick ground outs to start the bottom of the fourth inning, the Champions (11-15) battled at the plate to score their five runs on two hits to take a 9-2 lead.

Sawyer Lovvorn and Zach Crosslin both knocked a double in the inning to keep the rally alive.

"Two-out RBIs are our biggest thing offensively, especially when it's a close game," Champions head coach Travis Sheffield said.

"Community came with a purpose and put it on us to start the game, but we were able to bounce back. Those two-out hits we got were just pure baseball. Most of the time teams that get those and play solid defense are going to win games."

Sheffield made a pitching change to start the fifth inning with Walker Craig replacing Jaxon Sheffield on the mound with him reaching 95 pitches, but after a trio of walks and a hit batsman scored a run for the Vikings, Zach Crosslin took over for Craig with bases loaded.

Crosslin got out of the jam with a pair of strikeouts to minimize the damage.

"I tell all of them that you don't have to be great out there, you just have to be good enough," Sheffield said.

"Tonight, Jaxon was good enough. He stepped up when he needed to and got some big outs. Zach came in with bases loaded, and we ended up only allowing one run in that inning. That was tremendous for us."

Sheffield totaled nine strikeouts on the night while allowing three hits in four innings of work.

In the bottom half of the inning, Cascade scored one run after Logan Green was hit-by-pitch and advanced home two at-bats later on a wild pitch to take a 10-3 lead.

Shortly after, Lovvorn stepped to the plate with two runners on, and blasted a double off the right-field wall to score two more runs for the Champions.

A hit-by-pitch and walk loaded the bases for Conner Melson, who hit a fly ball in foul territory behind first base which allowed Lovvorn to tag up from third and score the game-winning run.

Lovvorn went 2-for-4 with a game-high four RBIs on the night.

"I've told him (Lovvorn) to not overthink it when he's up there because he's hit the ball well all season — he just swings at bad pitches — sometimes," Sheffield said. "Tonight, he spit on some good curveballs that helped him get ahead in the count. He didn't miss when they had to throw it over the plate."

While the Champions had some success at the plate throughout the game, the Vikings struggled to find holes in the defense after the second inning as all three of their hits came in the first two innings.

For head coach Robbie Davis, it was a matter of one team showing up and one team not.

"One team wanted to win, and one didn't. We showed up and went through the motions," Davis said.

"If you give up 13 runs, with most of them being walks and errors, you're not competing very well. The ball was coming across the plate, but guys were watching strikes. If you're doing that at this point of the season, it's going to be a really short postseason."

In the top of the second inning, James Beech led off with a single for the Vikings, and Maki Fleming knocked a two-out single a few at-bats later to score Beech for the first run of the game.

An inning later, Beech pushed one more run across for Community with a sacrifice fly to left field to make it a 4-2 game.

Their final run of the game came in the top of the fifth after a series of walks and hit-by-pitch from Craig before Crosslin took over on the mound.

Coffee Co. strikes back, forces Game 2 vs. Shelbyville

By CHRIS SIERS
sports@t-g.com

WINCHESTER — Aided by several Coffee County errors, Shelbyville Central was able to tie the game in the second inning.

But the Eagles were plagued with several errors of their own throughout the final four innings and Coffee County claimed the 9-2 win over Shelbyville, forcing a second game to decide the District 6 4-A championship on Sunday afternoon.

After striking out the first batter he faced, Marquis Wilson had to navigate a little trouble in the first inning, after hitting back-to-back batters.

A Shelbyville error then allowed the Red Raiders to score the first run of the game.

Nolan Jernigan then lifted a fly ball to center field, allowing a second Coffee County run to score in the inning.

The Eagles were able to tie the game in the top of the second inning as Coffee County committed four errors in the inning.

Caleb Molder connected on an infield base hit and safely reached via throwing error, allowing Nick Hopper to score the Eagles' first run.

Shelbyville tied the game up when Brody Lovvorn scored on a wild pitch.

Following that rough first inning, Wilson regained his composure and sat down seven Red Raider batters in a row until an error gave Coffee County its first base runner since the first inning.

Carter McKenzie then mashed a two-run homer to deep left field, giving the Red Raiders a 4-2 lead.

The district's top seed then played add on with a run in the fifth inning and four more in the sixth to force a second game to decide the district championship.

Shelbyville was plagued with six errors, while Coffee County didn't play much cleaner, committing five.

Wilson helped his own cause and went 2-for-3 to lead the Eagles at the plate.

Nick Johnson and Caleb Molder also singled.

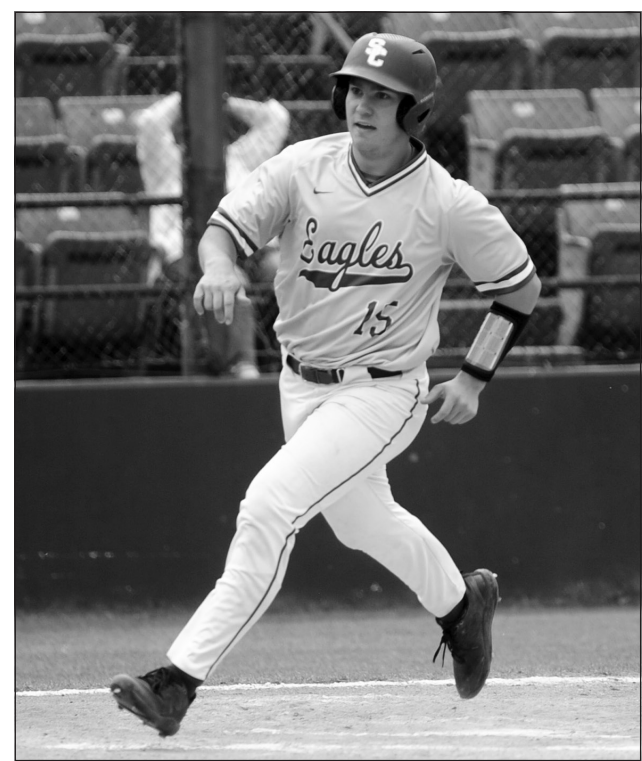

Wilson went 4 1/3 innings on the mound and gave up four runs, only one of which was earned, on two hits while striking out three.

the throw to home to get the lead runner out, but the Rockets pushed one more across in the next at-bat as Preston Gentry knocked an RBI-single to center field to take a 7-6 lead heading to the bottom of the sixth.

“We’re never out of any ballgame, and that’s a testament to our guys,” Forrest head coach Andy Burkett said. “If you go back to last week when we were losing 5-1 to the defending single A state champion in Eagleville, and we came back to win that game 9-5. Our guys never give up, and they have a lot of heart.”

Entering the championship game, the Rockets were slim on arms in the bullpen having played three games since Thursday night, and one earlier in the day on Saturday where they beat Grundy County to advance to the final against Cascade.

Burkett and the Rockets knew it would be a hard-fought game against a streaking Champions squad.

“We knew coming into today that it was an uphill battle with our pitching staff being depleted. So we knew we were going to have to ride Carter Walk, Ryan Meglis, and Tyler Tackett today. They did exactly what they were supposed to do,” Burkett said. “Hats off to Cascade. They’ve been a completely different ball club since the district tournament started, and they’re playing with a lot of confidence. Our district being well represented in the region tournament is something I’m really happy with.”

Walk tossed the majority of the game for the Rockets, going five innings with five strikeouts while allowing three runs on seven hits.

Cascade came out of the gates hot to take an early 3-0 lead after Jaxon Sheffield launched a ball to the right-field fence for a two-RBI triple, and Lovvorn singled immediately after to score him.

Craig followed it up in a big way by striking out the side in the top of the second to keep their momentum rolling.

He tossed 5 and 1/3 innings on the night with four walks, six strikeouts, and eight hits while allowing seven runs.

“I knew stamina would be a big thing for him tonight having been sick this week, but he gave us what we needed and then some. I told him to get us five good innings, but I left him out there for the sixth. And that’s when Forrest had their big inning,” Sheffield said. “Then Conner came in in a tough spot. I think we gave up one run in that spot, but then Conner put up a zero for us. He gave us a big opportunity to win the game, and he only started pitching for us late in the season. I kind of decided he was gonna be a guy for us after a few strong outings, and he’s been throwing it over the plate.”

Forrest found its rhythm in the top of the third inning to put up two runs for a 3-2 game after Gentry doubled to score Haynes and Tyler Baxter who both singled to start the inning.

The Champions answered with a run in the bottom half on a Zach Crosslin double that scored Lovvorn and they manufactured two more in the bottom of the fifth to take a 6-2 lead.

In the inning, Crosslin knocked a leadoff double, and Melson followed it up with a single to give Cascade runners on the corners.

Before the first pitch to Logan Pulley, Sheffield signaled for a delayed double steal between Crosslin and Melson, and they executed it to perfection by forcing the Rockets to throw to second which allowed Crosslin to score, and Melson to slide safely into second.

On the ensuing pitch to Pulley, he placed a bunt down the first baseline, and after a collision at first base, Melson slid into home to score and Pulley was called safe at first.

“I knew we didn’t have a big enough lead. A two or three run lead against those guys isn’t safe. They can swing it well, one through nine, and even some off the bench,” Sheffield said. “I wanted to make sure that anyone that got on base, we made sure to get that run across. That’s a tough team over there, so we needed as much as we could get.”

The 7-AA title came in Sheffield’s first season in charge of the Cascade baseball program, but it was a long and bumpy road to get to the championship game.

“At the start of the season, we were trying to get a feel for each other with me being a brand new coach and some new players coming in. We wanted to establish who we were, and some lumps came along the way,” Sheffield said. “When I saw who we had as a staff, some former Champions, I knew those guys were going to bring some passion to the program. It’s been great having those guys together this season. To see where we’ve come from and see these guys believe in themselves has been a joy.”

With the win, the Champions will host the first round of the region tournament against the 8-AA runner-up while the Rockets will travel to the 8-AA champion with both games being on Friday at 6 p.m.

Burkett and the Rockets are hoping for another shot with the Champions down the road.

“We feel confident going into it with the experience we have. Our bullpen will be reset and the lineup will be rested, so we’ll be ready to go make some noise,” Burkett said. “If we get the chance to see Cascade again, that would be awesome. We would love to have another crack at them, especially in postseason play.”

UNIONVILLE — Nine different Community Viqueens accounted for 15 hits as the Viqueens hit early and often en route to a 17-0 victory over the Central Magnet Lady Tigers in the final Community regular season softball game of the 2023 season.

Community (15-9-1) wasted little time getting on the board with three first inning runs. Anna Haskins and Abi Murrill set the table by reaching base on a single and error to put runners in scoring position.

An Abi Brown bunt single scored two runs while a double by Alana Tate and a single by Haley Mitchell helped to push across another run as the Viqueens took their 3-0 lead.

The Viqueens put the game out of reach with eight runs in the second.

Singles by Haskins, Tate, and Carlie Blanton and a double by Murrill were sandwiched between a single to start the inning by Taylar Wessner and a home run by Wessner at the end as Community sent 11 batters to the plate and increased its lead to 11-0.

Singles by Zoey Dixon, Annie Prince, and Blanton brought home two runs in the third as the Viqueens went up 13-0.

The game ended in grand style in the bottom of the fourth as Tate cleared the bases with a grand slam homer.

Prince was the starting pitcher for the Viqueens with Mitchell in relief. It was Mitchell’s first appearance on the mound this season after being sidelined with an injury.

pleased with the performance and work ethic of his team as the Viqueens get ready for the district tournament.

“I am super proud of them,” Farrell said. “We went down to Richland and got beat 3-0 and I don’t think our heads were there.”

“I told them I need to change me as a coach and be a little more positive,” Farrell added.

“I think when I do that, they tend to love the game a little more and play a little harder.”

The Viqueens went the extra mile on the day preceding the game against Central Magnet.

“We practiced yesterday at 6 a.m. and had another practice at 3:30. They wanted to do that and they were all about it,” Farrell said.

“They hit, hit, hit and then they came out here and put on a pretty big hitting clinic,” Farrell added.

Farrell thinks the tougher regular season slate the Viqueens played will pay dividends down the road.

“I think our schedule and what we’ve been doing assures that we can compete against anybody,”

Farrell said.

With the higher seed hosting each game in the District 7-AA tournament, Community, with the number one seed in the tournament, will play all of its games at home.

The Viqueens began postseason play with a first-round contest on Monday against Grundy County.

WINCHESTER — Two short months ago, Shelbyville Central was staring down an 0-7 start to the 2023 campaign.

After Thursday night’s 10-4 win over District 6 4-A host Franklin County, the Eagles are now playing for a district championship and remain unbeaten in the winner’s bracket.

Shelbyville grabbed the early 1-0 lead when Carston Williams ground into an RBI fielder’s choice.

That lead held until Franklin County plated three runs in the top of the fourth inning on a RBI double and two RBI singles.

The Rebs padded their lead with a fourth run in the top of the fifth inning on another RBI single, bumping the lead to 4-1.

And then the the Eagles came to the plate.

The Eagles batted around in the fifth inning and hammered Franklin County pitching to the tune of nine runs on six hits.

William Bobo, Nick Johnson, Kyler Trice, Caleb Molder, and Brody Lovvorn all connected on RBI singles in the inning, while Jaquai Beverly slugged an RBI double to left.

Bobo went 2-for-4 with two RBIs in the win, while Lovvorn also had a two-hit night with a pair of runs driven in.

The Eagles connected on three doubles, with Nick Johnson, Beverly and Lovvorn all collecting two-baggers.

On the mound, Palmer Edwards got the nod and the start for the Golden Eagles and pitched four innings, giving up four runs on eight hits, while striking out five.

Will gambling case at Alabama ripple across college sports?

By RALPH D. RUSSO
AP College Sports Writer

Alabama fired its baseball coach this week amid an investigation into suspicious bets involving a Crimson Tide game at LSU.

The school did not give details about why Brad Bohannon was let go, saying only that he violated “the standards, duties, and responsibilities expected of university employees.”

This appears to be the first major gambling scandal in college sports since a Supreme Court decision five years ago paved the way for states to legalize wagering on sporting events.

How were potential improprieties spotted? And what have schools and conferences been doing to safeguard competition since legal sports betting has become widespread in the United States?

Red flag

Alabama lost 8-6 at top-ranked LSU on April 28 in a game in which the Crimson Tide’s top starting pitcher was a late scratch with an injury.

A Louisiana gambling official who received a report from a sports integrity monitor said two bets were placed in Ohio at a sportsbook located in the Cincinnati Reds stadium, Great American Ball Park.

Matthew Holt, the president of U.S. Integrity, said the operators of the sportsbook alerted his company to “abnormal activity.” U.S. Integrity alerted state gambling and gaming associations. After collecting information from other states, U.S. Integrity reported back to Ohio regulators, who opened an investigation.

Sporting events all over the world are monitored for potential issues. Holt said U.S. Integrity sends out about 15 alerts per month to sportsbook operators, sports leagues and organizing bodies it has as clients. Its client list includes the Southeastern Conference, home to both Alabama and LSU.

WHY DID OTHER STATES SUSPEND WAGERING ON ALABAMA BASEBALL?

New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Indiana also pulled Alabama baseball off their boards.

“You have to remember this is really new in a lot of these states and they’re still figuring out how they want to handle it,” Holt said. “You know, not surprisingly, the more experienced states New Jersey and Pennsylvania, they know that the safest bet when there’s a potential issue is to take that event off the board.”

How is sports wagering monitored?

U.S. Integrity, for example, analyzes data that includes real-time odds and wagering at sportsbooks to try to spot irregular activity. The company also monitors online chatter on social media and other websites.

“All kinds of information, some of which human beings are looking through, some of which the machines are identifying using algorithms,” he said. “The second way alerts are catalyzed, which is what happened in this instance, is operators identify some type of abnormal, nefarious, suspicious activity.”

In most states, sportsbooks are required to work with independent monitors.

Scandals

College sports has had its share of gambling-related scandals through the years, including point-shaving in basketball and football where the final scores of games were improperly impacted.

Initial indications are what happened with Alabama baseball was not point-shaving.

A person familiar with the investigation told The Associated Press on Thursday that no evidence indicates athletes were involved. The person spoke on condition of anonymity because of an ongoing investigation by the school.

The NFL recently suspended five players for violating the league’s gambling rules. Holt said the Alabama case is different.

“What we’re not used to is it involving a coach,” Holt said. “I think the coach is supposed to be the mentor, the role model. And that’s the difference here.”

ESPN reported that sportsbook surveillance video indicated the person who made the suspicious bets in Cincinnati on Alabama’s game was communicating with Bohannon at the time.

“The natural comparison a lot of people are going to draw is Pete Rose,” said sports gambling expert John Holden, an associate professor in the Oklahoma State School of Business. Rose was banned from Major League Baseball for betting on games while manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

Oversight

The NCAA, the largest governing body for college sports in the country, prohibits athletes and athletic department employees from gambling — even legally. And conferences partnered with integrity monitors even before legalized wagering on sporting events became pervasive.

But college sports leaders have looked for both increased protections and ways to tap into the gambling revenue streams over the last five years. The Mid-American Conference was the first to jump in, licensing the rights to its data and statistics to a company called Genius Sports, which will in turn sell it to sportsbooks under a five-year deal announced in 2022.

“Now institutions and conferences are even owning their own data (from sporting events). There’s only one reason to own the data and that’s because it can be managed and sold to gambling interests,” former Big 12 Commissioner Bob Bowlsby said. “It’s a constantly changing environment, but I wouldn’t say that I feel confident that, with the prevalence of gambling, that there aren’t people who are seeking to affect the integrity or outcome of games.”

Good sign?

Holt said said the Alabama case is actually an example of the benefits of legalized wagering.

“It proves that regulated sports betting and transparency into the marketplace that we have now, it works,” he said. “When people do nefarious things, we catch them.”

Saleh sees ‘fire’ in Rodgers, dispels ‘silly’ wish list talk

By DENNIS WASZAK Jr.
AP Pro Football Writer

FLORHAM PARK, N.J. — Robert Saleh has seen all he needs to know that Aaron Rodgers is all in with the New York Jets.

For one, the four-time NFL MVP has been practicing with the team during voluntary workouts, something Rodgers hadn’t done his last few offseasons with Green Bay.

But there’s something else. And it goes far beyond the football field.

“You just see a fire in a guy’s eye when you’re sitting and talking to him,” Saleh said Friday after the team’s first rookie minicamp practice. “He’s coming to win. You can just feel it in his voice. You can see it in his eyes and the way he’s going about his business.”

Rodgers was acquired last week by the Jets, who got a player they believe will help them snap a 12-year playoff drought that is the longest active slump in the NFL — and lead them deep into the postseason.

But these are the early days of that journey, and there were some who wondered about Rodgers’ commitment to the process — especially since he stayed away from the Packers the past few years until mandatory practices. At his introductory news conference last Wednesday, the 39-year-old quarterback said he intended to be around the Jets often throughout the offseason.

That has been the case so far. Rodgers has also been taking in his new town with his Jets teammates, attending two Knicks playoff games and a Devils-Rangers postseason showdown at Madison Square Garden.

“As a coach, you want them all here all the time, but I just felt like for him, he’s a very smart individual, very deep and very thoughtful,” Saleh said. “So I was never worried about whether or not he was going to be here. I always felt like if he did want to be here, he was going to be here, if he decided to be a Jet.

“Because he is so competitive and he does understand that he has to get acclimated to the new building. He’ll have to get the receivers acclimated to him and he’ll have to get the verbiage and get everybody in to help him get everybody on the same page.”

The Jets are holding rookie minicamp this weekend with their draft picks, including first-rounder Will McDonald, taking the field along with undrafted free agents. But Rodgers and the veterans practiced and held meetings earlier in the week, and the quarterback made an immediate impression.

“I’ve never been around a quarterback quite like him, personally,” Saleh said. “All his experience, his communication. ... He practically is another coach out there. He’s pretty impressive.”

Saleh and a contingent of Jets representatives, including owner Woody Johnson and general manager Joe Douglas, flew out to Rodgers’ home in Southern California to court him in March, and then waited for the quarterback to make his decision on his playing future. It was reported Rodgers also provided the Jets with a “wish list” of players he’d like to play with if he came to New York.

Saleh dispelled the widely circulated notion it was a list of demands by Rodgers, calling it “a silly narrative.”

“It’s very common for new faces to want old faces to be able to come in and help accelerate the installation of a program,” Saleh said.

The Jets coach said he had players he wanted to join him when he took over in 2021, including Solomon Thomas, Marcell Harris, D.J. Reed, Kwon Alexander and Laken Tomlinson. Saleh cited what Tom Brady did when he went to Tampa Bay and gave his input on players who could help the Buccaneers win.

2023 Shelbyville Water Quality Report

The Shelbyville Water Board of Directors Meet the 4th Tuesday Each Month
Location 308 South Main Street: Time 5:00pm. Please feel free to participate in these meetings.

IS OUR DRINKING WATER SAFE? YES

Our water meets all of EPA Health standards. Test results for 2022 are included in this report

WHAT IS THE SOURCE OF OUR WATER?

Your water, which is surface water, comes from the Duck River. Our goal is to protect our water from contaminants and we are working with the State to determine the vulnerability of our water supply to contamination. The Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation (TDEC) has prepared a Source Water Assessment Program (SWAP) Report for the water supplies serving this system. The SWAP Report assesses the susceptibility of public water supplies to potential contamination. Water sources have been rated as reasonably susceptible (high), moderately susceptible (moderate) or slightly susceptible (low) based on geologic factors and human activities in the vicinity of the water source. The Shelbyville Water System sources rated as reasonably susceptible to potential contamination.

An explanation of Tennessee’s Source Water Assessment Program, the Source Water Assessment summaries, susceptibility scorings and the overall TDEC report to EPA can be viewed online at www.state.tn.us/environment/dws/dwassess.shtml or you may contact the Water System or TDEC at 1-888-891-TDEC to obtain copies of specific assessments.

The State and EPA requires testing and reporting on the quality of our water 24 hours a day while the plant is in operation to ensure its safety. Shelbyville Water System flushes main lines and dead end water mains on a routine schedule to keep water fresh and clean as possible.

WHY ARE THERE CONTAMINANTS IN OUR WATER?

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency’s Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791). For more information about our drinking water call Dennis Rankin at 684-5998 or 684 7171.

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

Contaminants that may be present in source water:

- Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations, and wildlife.
- Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban storm-water runoff, industrial, or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming.
- Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban storm-water runoff, and residential uses.
- Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban storm-water runoff, and septic systems.
- Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally-occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA and the Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation prescribe regulations which limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which must provide the same protection for public health.

Do I Need To Take Special Precautions?

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

In this table you will find many terms and abbreviations you might not be familiar with. To help you better understand these terms we’ve provided the following definitions:

Non-Detects (ND) - laboratory analysis indicates that the constituent is not present.
Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l) - one part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.
Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter - one part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.
Parts per trillion (ppt) or Nanograms per liter (nanograms/l) - one part per trillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000,000.
Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) - picocuries per liter is a measure of the radioactivity in water.
Million Fibers per Liter (MFL) - million fibers per liter is a measure of the presence of asbestos fibers that are longer than 10 micrometers.
Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) - nephelometric turbidity unit is a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity in excess of 5.0 NTU is just noticeable to the average person.
Action Level (AL) - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.
Treatment Technique (TT) - A treatment technique is a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.
Maximum Contaminant Level - The “Maximum Allowed” (MCL) is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.
Maximum Contaminant Level Goal - The “Goal” (MCLG) is the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health.
Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level - (MRDL) - A level of a disinfectant added for water treatment that may not be exceeded at the customer’s tap without an unacceptable possibility of adverse health effects.
Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal - (MRDLG) - A maximum level of a disinfectant added for water treatment and for which no known or anticipated adverse effect on human health would occur, allowing for an adequate margin of safety.

Most of the data presented in this table is from testing done between January and December 2022.

Turbidity does not present any risk to your health. We monitor turbidity, which is a measure of the cloudiness of water, because it is a good indicator that our filtration system is functioning properly.

Public Water Systems using surface water shall continuously chlorinate and maintain a free chlorine residual of 0.2 mg/l in all parts of the distribution system. The residual disinfectant level in the distribution system must be measured at the same time as total coliforms are sampled. Of all 2022distribution disinfectant samples: Average = 2.95 ppm Range = 1.7 to 3.4 ppm

We constantly monitor the water supply for various constituents. We tested for Cryptosporidium in our source water and have not detected any this test period.

Total Trihalomethanes THM,s) Some people who drink water containing trihalomethanes (THM,s) in excess of the MCL over many years may experience problems with their liver, kidneys, or central nervous systems, and may have an increased risk of getting cancer.

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. Shelbyville Power Water and Sewer is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking water Hotline [1-800-426-4791] or at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>

During the most recent Lead and Copper testing (tests performed in 2020) no sites exceeded the state regulations. Special notice of the availability of Unregulated Contaminant Monitoring results: UCMR sampling has been completed as required. All results were below limits. For further information concerning these monitoring results contact Dennis Rankin @ 931-684-5998.

We’re proud that your drinking water meets or exceeds all Federal and State requirements. We have learned through our monitoring and testing that some constituents have been detected. The EPA has determined that your water IS SAFE at these levels. To understand the possible health effects described for many regulated constituents, a person would have to drink 2 liters of water every day at the MCL level for a lifetime to have a one-in-a-million chance of having the described health effect.

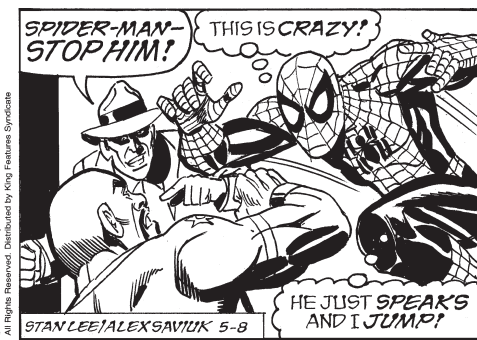

Volatile Organic Chemical sampling and Analytical requirements have been completed in conjunction with the “Vulnerability Assessment” process. All listed contaminants were found to be below detection limits.

The Frenchie becomes a favorite – and a dog-show contender

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States' new favorite dog breed — the comical, controversial French bulldog — has never won the nation's pre-eminent dog show.
 Yet here, at an obliging trot, comes Winston. The Frenchie with NFL connections is a strong contender at this week's Westminster Kennel Club dog show, less than two months after the release of rankings showing that his kind has become the country's most prevalent dog breed.
 Frenchies' rise has been stunning: from 83rd most popular to No. 1 in three decades. It also has been dogged by concerns about their health, debate over the ethics of breeding, denunciations of a gold-rush-like market with ever more "exotic" variations, and a recent spate of high-profile and sometimes fatal robberies.

If all that says something about these stumpy-snouted, pointy-eared, deep-chested, quizzical little bulldogs, what does it say about the culture that loves them?

THEIR MEDIA IMAGE IMPACTS THEIR POPULARITY

"Just like humans, dogs get characterized for what they can do, but more importantly what they can symbolize," says Cameron Whitley, a Western Washington University sociology professor and the chair-elect of the American Sociological Association's Animals and Society section. Whitley argues that breeds' popularity depends less on their traits than on their portrayal in media and pop culture.

Indeed, a 2013 study found no indication that longer lifespans, better behavior or other desirable characteristics make a dog breed more sought-after. One of the authors, Western Carolina University psychology professor Hal Herzog, also has observed that parabolic spikes in dog breeds resemble those in baby names, hit songs and other boom-and-bust commodities of pop culture. In short, they're canine memes.

"The dogs have become a form of fashion," says Herzog, who wrote a book about human attitudes and conduct toward animals.

French bulldogs have a colorful, centuries-long history involving English lacemakers, the Parisian demimonde and Gilded Age American tourists who brought the dogs home. (One even died in the 1912 sinking of the Titanic.) But the breed's U.S. heyday soon ended.

Then Americans got a fresh look at Frenchies in the current century. They turned up on domesticity maven Martha Stewart's TV show, then in narrative series and movies (such as "Modern Family" and "Due Date"), ads (including Super Bowl spots for Skechers in 2012 and Bud Light this year) and the social media accounts of celebrity owners (Lady Gaga, Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson and many more).

French bulldog fans point to attributes beyond camera-readiness to explain the dogs' appeal. They boast easy-care coats, modest exercise needs, an apartment-friendly size and a demeanor memorably described as "a clown in the cloak of a philosopher."

Yet that hasn't translated into wins at Westminster, where each dog is judged against an ideal for its own breed, not against others.
